U.S. Sends Argentina Weapons to Hit Sub

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Navy said yesterday it is sending depth charges and electronic equipment to help Argentina attack an unidentified object believed to be a foreign submarine.

The material was being flown to Argentina and was expected to arrive this weekend. "No U.S. ships, aircraft, or personnel will be operating with the Argentine navy," the announcement said.

Argentina is now equipped with depth charges that will not reach the ocean floor where the sub is lying.

'Goodbye Salmon'

Fraser Diversion End of Columbia?

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has jeopardized U.S.-Canada agreement on power sharing on the Columbia River through its continued threat to divert its waters into the Fraser River, Senator Thomas Reid said Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Green has said repeatedly that in any joint agreement, "we will reserve the power to divert the water from the Columbia," the senator said.

"That might well be used as one of the arguments for American interests not to reach a final agreement."

Senator Reid, chairman of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said any diversion of Columbia water to the Fraser would mean "goodbye salmon" and the end of a $50,000,000 yearly business for his province.

Power Parley Begins

OTTAWA (UPI)—First round of Canada-U.S. negotiations for co-operative development of the vast water resources of the Columbia River system began Thursday.

The talks lasted more than five hours. Another session is scheduled today and no statement will be made until it ends.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)

—An unconfirmed press report said a mystery submarine, hunted by the Argentine navy for 12 days, surfaced in Argentine waters Thursday and was attacked by warships and naval aircraft.

This was the latest story in a bizarre naval operation that has prompted wild speculation as well as serious political questions on what the submarine—if it is a submarine—is doing in Argentine waters.

STILL PURSUING

All that the navy would say is that it still is pursuing the submarine believed trapped in Golfo Nuevo, a 20 by 40 square mile body of water separated from the Atlantic by a narrow entrance.

The Argentine news agency Telam said its correspondent at Puerto Madryn was told of the surface battle by unofficial sources. He added that the situation was "extremely confused."

MOST JEALOUS

Argentina is among the world's most jealous nations in matters of sovereignty.

If the navy should capture a submarine, whatever country it belongs to will be in for a difficult time not only with Argentina but most of Latin America. Diplomatic relations have been broken for far smaller affronts.

If there is a submarine and it turns out to be Russian, the current Soviet trade and friendship offensive probably would be set back for years as far as Latin America is concerned.

A government source said the submarine could be from Russia, Poland, East Germany, or Communist China.

Sea Crash Kills Nine

OAK HARBOR, Wash. (AP)—Nine U.S. Navy fliers died Thursday when their two-engine patrol seaplane crashed in Puget Sound, cartwheeling and shattering into bits as it hit the water.

Bennett Back With Budget

Premier Bennett has had the good word from his doctors and expects to be on hand at 3 p.m. today to deliver his budget address to the legislature.

All reserved seats in the legislative galleries have been taken and it is expected there will be a line-up for the 125 seats in the public galleries.

The speech, which is expected to provide benefits for nearly everybody in British Columbia, will take about 1½ hours to read.

The premier, who has been convalescing after major surgery for a kidney ailment, expects to read the entire speech himself.

Disarmament Parley

Must Have China Pearson Contends

OTTAWA (UPI)—The absence of Communist China from the forthcoming 10-nation disarmament committee may prevent it from working out an effective disarmament agreement, Opposition leader Lester Pearson warned last night.

Pearson, who emphasized that he did not believe Red China should be given a United Nations seat or recognized diplomatically, said it would be difficult to reach an agreement "which will mean something," unless the Red regime was in the negotiations from the beginning.

"To be effective, disarmament must include the Red Chinese army in some form or another," Pearson told the Commons during the external affairs debate.

Kidnap Suspects Hunted

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—Sheriff Art Wermuth said here last night he was searching for three suspects in the probable kidnapping of millionaire brewer Adolph Coors III.

One, he said, was believed to be in the Denver metropolitan area and the other two "are southeast of here." He reaffirmed that no effort has been made to contact the Coors family for ransom.

Dental Technician Takes Case to Top

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP)—The battle of a Drumheller dental technician versus a Drumheller dentist will go before the Supreme Court of Canada in Ottawa later this month when he fitted a patient for a set of false teeth.

The magistrate's and district courts ruled that no law was broken, as Mr. Vail did not charge for fitting the patient, only for the actual making of the dental plates.

'Copters for Hire If Trains Stuck

LONDON (UPI)—A car rental firm plans to use helicopters and motor launches to get businessmen to work if railroadmen go on strike. The company will hire helicopters to fly residents from outer suburbs into the Battersea helicopter station, then take them by motorboat up the Thames to work.

Charges for a group of four will be only slightly more than rent for a chauffeur-driven limousine.

Paar Walks Out in Mid-Show, Let Down by NBC, He Says

JACK PAAR
... emotional farewell

NEW YORK (AP)—Comedian Jack Paar, feuding with NBC because he was cut off the air Wednesday night during an anecdote, quit the show in a huff Thursday night. It was an emotional farewell.

There were groans from the audience and shouts of "Oh, no," as the television star announced his exit from the show.

"I believe I was let down by this network at a time when I could have used their help," Paar said.

The audience broke into applause. NBC immediately issued a statement expressing the hope he would cool off and ultimately reconsider his abrupt decision.

There was doubt at that time whether the taped show would be broadcast. But NBC decided to broadcast it exactly as taped, including Paar's almost tearful farewell.

with the letters "W.C." widely used in Europe as an abbreviation for water closet, and the ensuing confusion, when someone understood them to mean wayside chapel.

A network official said NBC's department of standards and practices felt the story was in bad taste.

Paar called it "very innocent." Stranded for the moment in the confusion were three well-known guest stars—Genevieve, the French singer and actress; Orson Bean, actor and comedian, and comedian Shelly Berman.

Announcer Hugh Downs took over later as master of ceremonies of the coast-to-coast show and the taping was continued.

Some broadcasting officials expressed the belief that Paar would cool off during the weekend and return to the show next week. Paar had been in an angry mood all day over the censoring of the anecdote Wednesday night and denounced as "an idiot" the unnamed NBC official who ordered him cut off the air.

Esquimalt House Pockmarked

Force of the blast left the front of the house at 836 Dunsmuir pockmarked with rock, chipped the fireplace, damaged the floor and the television set and left the room filled with rocks the size of coconuts. But Harvey McGee was counting his blessings, nonetheless.

IN FRONT WINDOW

"My boy Robbie was sitting directly in front of the window watching television not five minutes before it happened," he said last night. "If he had been there at the time, no telling what might have happened."

The blast occurred on the opposite side of Dunsmuir Road, where workmen have been clearing rock to widen the street. But a fault in the rock turned a routine explosion into one that sent a hail of rock speeding across the street.

NO NEGLIGENCE

Mr. McGee, who is satisfied that there was no negligence on anyone's part that led to the accident, was surveying the damage last night.

Rocks had been driven through the window with such force that they went the length of the living room into the room beyond. Carpets have to be sent out to be cleared of shattered glass, and there were several dents in the hardwood floor.

SHORT CIRCUIT

The television set that Robbie had been watching had a piece knocked out of its cabinet. Somehow the explosion caused a short-circuit, which turned on the record-player of the combination set.

Robbie, too young to realize how narrowly he had escaped what might have been a serious accident, was concerned with only one thing last night.

"They have to take the TV set away," he explained gravely, and left no doubt that this was a serious problem indeed.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

YESTERDAY I dropped into "Featherland" on Burnside Road to see how Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hyndman were getting along. They are the people who talk to birds—and the birds talk back.

Mr. Hyndman himself is a lean, wiry man with a glittering eye. When he sets out to communicate with a bird, he leans forward and upward so that his nose becomes a beak, and dodges his head back and forth, uttering sharp cries and hisses.

When he used this technique on a Canada goose that was wandering about the yard in company with ducks, the goose came up to him, honking, and darted its head comically from side to side in a pretended duel.

I would have sworn that it acknowledged him as a fellow bird.

Indoors, he addressed a rapid-fire series of clucks, hisses and wheedling sounds to a magpie, which fluffed itself up, chattered back, caught a ball, the size of a marble, in its beak, then dropped the ball on command.

This performance was done against a background of varied sounds from the rest of the menagerie: Cries of "Hello everybody," "I know" and "You're horrible," from the cages of the talking mynahs, blood-curdling shrieks from a macaw, the chirps of a bald-headed robin (winter moult) and the rattle of squirrels leaping around in their cages.

Mrs. Adele Hyndman rebuked the macaw for screaming. She spoke to it in the harsh, penetrating voice that she uses in teaching birds to talk. She has become so much accustomed to using this sharp tone that it often carries over into her ordinary speech.

"Relatively few people have what we call bird sense, even those who are known as wildlife experts," Mr. Hyndman remarked. The rapport between the Hyndmans and the birds was uncannily close. I felt that the Hyndmans had become more bird-like since my last visit.

It was a chilling experience to watch Mr. Hyndman kissing a golden eagle called Susan on the head, and rubbing noses, or beaks, with her. Susan might have flicked out his eye in a second.

"For eight weeks we had to paint her throat four times a day with an antiseptic, to treat an infection," Mr. Hyndman said. The eagle has been in captivity since she was a chick.

There are two other eagles, one golden, the other baldheaded. The bald eagle was brought in from Sooke with an infected gunshot wound in one wing and infection in the feet. It would have died without treatment. Other birds of prey include a king vulture from Peru and several hawks and owls.

The Hyndmans live with birds night and day. In their small living quarters I met two more mynahs, a small burrowing owl that stays with them because "psychologically he can't live in a cage," and a junior nighthawk, believed to be the only one in captivity.

The nighthawk was taken after it had fallen from a high nest. Rearing it was difficult. Nighthawks don't eat in the ordinary way. They fly through the air with mouths open. The Hyndmans devised a force-feeding technique to keep it alive—a method which they refuse to talk about. It is a secret.

A seagull named "Itchy-Pitchy-Poo," which was hatched at "Featherland," came in answer to Mr. Hyndman's call, and waddled through the room.

Outside, Mr. Hyndman showed me a couple of ravens which always come into the living quarters at night. "They don't like camping," he explained.

LELORD KORDEL

Fitness Is Easy

By LLOYD PERCIVAL
(Last of a Series)

Today the matter of controlling the poundage we have, how much sleep one really needs and the bearing correct posture has on fitness, will be discussed.

Of course in each case, your happiness, your whole outlook on life depends on having everything in balance.

It is fundamental that to achieve and sustain a good standard of fitness you must avoid both excess and inadequate weight.

If you are carrying around superfluous poundage you are doing your body probably the worst disservice possible; if you are underweight you will find it exceedingly difficult to meet the demands of living with success and enjoyment.

Beginning and sustaining a personal exercise program can help you with both these problems.

It is a well-known fact that to sustain fitness you must get enough sleep. However, the amount of sleep each person needs varies according to his temperament and the type of life he is leading.

While most experts agree that six to eight hours is the minimum, what is more important than the amount of sleep is the quality of sleep you get.

Many of us do not get too much value from our sleep because we are so tense.

Your posture is important to your general fitness.

Incorrect posture creates stress, causing malfunction of many vital organs. Poor posture is often the cause of muscular and joint pain, fatigue and tension.

Pay special attention to your abdominal posture, because if the stomach wall is allowed to sag, many vital organs will not be in their proper position and will have to do extra labor.

The work that your heart has to do also will greatly increase and your whole organism will be under strain.

Working on the fitness program as suggested will help you achieve good posture, but if it is a particular problem to you we suggest that you check with an orthopedic surgeon.

Eat and Grow Younger

Don't Overload Your Stomach

By LELORD KORDEL
(Last of a Series)

In planning your Eat-and-Grow-Younger program of high-protein foods, I have tried to keep in mind the only important nutritional taboos which have a basis in scientific fact:

1. Never combine high-proteins (red meats, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk) with high-starches (rice, macaroni, spaghetti, white bread, rich desserts) at the same meal. And if, for some valid reason, you are forced to eat more high-starch meals than high-protein, then by all means take liberal amounts of concentrated B-vitamins, since the more starch you eat, the more your body is depleted of the B-complex factors.

2. Avoid combining pure fats with high starches in the same meal. For instance bacon (almost 100 per cent fat, and of the wrong kind, too), fried potatoes, cream, white sugar, white bread and jelly are a rather common breakfast menu in some homes, yet nothing could be worse nutrition.

It's absolutely impossible to plan a meal that doesn't include some carbohydrate with its proteins, or some fat with its carbohydrates. But the thing to keep in mind is this: A meal should be predominantly either protein or carbohydrate.

When it is predominantly protein, it should include only those natural starches found in vegetables, fruits, milk and honey or unrefined raw sugar.

This is a good place to clear the lowly white potato of the many unfounded dietary crimes charged against it. Potatoes, either baked or steamed in the skin, are a good food and do not come under the heading of the starches to be omitted from a protein meal. It's not the potato that adds the calories, but the grease it's fried in, or the gravies poured over it.

Start your meals with fruit, a cup of vegetable soup, a bouillon or meat broth. Why? Because fresh fruits, together with meat extracts or the bouillon made by simmering meats and vegetables together, stimulate the digestive juices.

This is a timely spot to bring up the subject of chewing.

1. All vegetables, fruits and sugar-starch foods should be chewed thoroughly. Carbohydrates are digested in an alkaline base, as I've explained before. The saliva in your mouth is an alkali, and is secreted by the salivary glands as the first step in the long and complicated digestion of carbohydrates. Therefore, if you bolt your carbohydrate foods, you cause them to miss this preliminary processing.

2. All protein foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and cheese require little chewing for good digestion. No doubt this comes as a surprise to you—a complete reversal of everything you've ever been taught about mastication.

This is a good time to pass on to you a bit of wisdom regarding whole fruit versus fruit juices.

All fruits (vegetables, too) are carbohydrates. That means their digestion begins in the mouth. With that fact in mind, will someone please tell me how you can chew a glass of orange juice?

The juice, with its naturally high sugar content, passes immediately through the mouth and stomach without any pre-digestion whatsoever.

The kindest thing you can do for your stomach is not to overload it.

Moreover, if food gives you a real taste thrill, you actually eat less, are better nourished and avoid the dangers of overeating.

Your mind and your body can remain youthful many years past your so-called "prime," if only you don't help fasten the shackles of a premature old age on yourself every time you sit down at the table.

Tight-Money Hurting Schools 'Just as Bad as Communists'

B.C. Plans 'Strangled' Peterson Charges

B.C.'s school building program is being throttled by a strangling money-market situation and the fiscal policies of the federal government, Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the legislature yesterday.

"It's bad enough that the federal government is one of the few governments in the world which does not contribute to the costs of public school education," he said. "But when it adopts monetary policies that hinder and almost prevent provincial and local governments from performing necessary work, then it is deserving of the severest censure."

"In my opinion, the Communists themselves could not have played greater havoc with the economy of the province than the present policy of high interest rates now being forced upon the Canadian economy."

Provincial decision to buy an additional $8,000,000 worth of school debentures, he said, should build approximately 400 classrooms and provide accommodation for an additional 14,000 pupils provided the bank credit of the school boards is not further restricted.

Provincial public works department will open tenders March 9 for the second stage of construction of Victoria Law Courts, the basement floors and parking area. Final portion, the upper storeys of the five-storey building, will be done by a single contract expected to be awarded in May.

Awards for merit will be given each year to three B.C. teachers for outstanding service in the classroom, Education Minister Peterson said. They will be certificates which will carry a special and personal citation. Money may also be given.

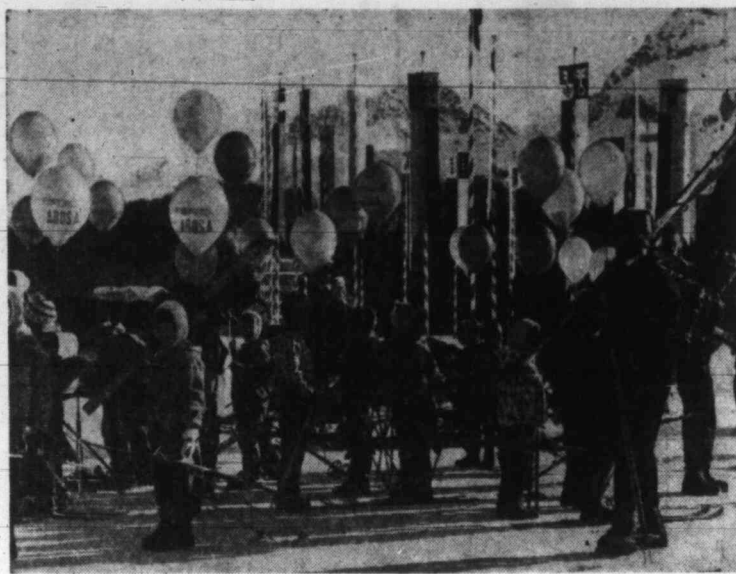

The B.C. Electric and Peace River Power Development have too much political influence with the government, Tony Garrahy (CCF, Mackenzie) said. He said that giving Wenner Gren interviews and W. C.

Mainwaring control of a huge hydro resource like the Peace was a mistake on the grand scale of 19th-century railway promotions.

Donald Brothers (SC, Rossland-Trail) said the government should follow the recommendation of Commissioner A. E. Lord of a Dec. 31, 1960, deadline on sale of lands to Doukhobors at 60 per cent of assessed value.

After that, he said, the lands should be opened to sale to the public.

Dan Campbell, chairman of the legislative committee to investigate the question of trading stamps, appealed for briefs from interested groups or individuals. Hearings will begin late next week.

Egg Payments Not to Blame

Island Poultrymen Urged To Weather Price Storm

Canada's deficiency payment plan for egg producers may be contrary to the laws of economics but it is not to blame for the plight of Island poultrymen, a B.C. poultry official said yesterday.

He was replying to a statement attributed to Jack Armstrong, vice-president of the Lower Vancouver Island Poultry Producers' Association, who indicated the program is bringing ruin to the Island's poultry business.

The official said:

1. Island producers can look for the best prices they have seen for years after June and at least until early fall.

2. Today's low prices are not the result of the deficiency payment plan but of its forerunner, the guarantee-to-purchase program which ended last October.

3. All Island producers must do to achieve a healthier position is weather the storm of today's below-cost prices. The official said that the deficiency payment plan, which guarantees a year-end adjustment to registered producers for up to 4,000 dozen eggs if the national weighted average price drops below 33 cents per dozen, is probably achieving its intended purpose of reducing Prairie egg production.

But he said that because the reduction in the number of plan tends to render the birds, the official continued, greatest benefits to the small producer it will ultimately be felt later this year, he said, when prices should increase. After that, Island producers can look forward to a "There was need of a drastic period of better markets."

Red Feather Spokesman:

Keep Worthy Agencies In Community Chest

Advantage of having all worthy health, welfare and recreation agencies within the Community Chest "far outweighs the disadvantages," a Chest spokesman said here yesterday.

The statement came from A. E. Walters, a vice-president of the Victoria Community Chest, a day after a Vancouver labor official and a UBC professor levelled sharp criticism at the Vancouver Community Chest.

Lloyd Whalen, a Teamsters official and former chairman of the Vancouver United Appeal, said many agencies do not properly belong there and he cited the YMCA and various medical research groups as examples. Prof. Michael Wheeler said

X-15 Rocket Reaches New High

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An X-15 rocket ship soared to 80,000 feet yesterday in a successful 11-minute flight, its highest flight yet.

Speed was announced as "over 1,400 miles an hour."

Scott Crossfield, test pilot for North American Aviation Inc., said the plane was "handling very smoothly."

he was not sure the Chest was representative of the community and said collection methods "are hardly distinguishable from blackmail or taxation, but without the equitable basis of taxation."

Mr. Walters said in reply that the question of which organizations should be in the Chest "will always be a matter of criticism for some people."

But in dealing with Chest agencies, he said, "we apply a basic... philosophy that those in a position to pay should pay."

He pointed out that the YMCA's total budget here last year was $94,000 but that only slightly over one-third of this amount was supplied by the Chest.

"The Chest money goes to make up the operating deficit of the agency which occurs when the agency gives services to people who cannot pay the full amount, or to subsidize a service so that everyone can afford it who needs it," Mr. Walters continued.

Major advantage of having all charitable groups in the Chest, he said, is that "we know that the books and accounts, together with the program the agency provides, have been carefully reviewed in relation to all other local charities and that there is no duplication, overlapping or needless expenditures of funds."

'Eyesore' Opponents Stop Council Action

Strong opposition from nearby residents dissuaded city council yesterday from approving commercial rezoning of property at 1004-1006 Skinner.

E. L. Knott, 424 Skinner, told council: "We all feel very strongly about these old buildings; they're an eyesore to the district."

The rezoning application, he pointed out, didn't say what the property would be used for.

Mayor Percy Scurrell announced appointment of A. W. Toome, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council, to the special committee studying civic auditorium possibilities.

Council gave preliminary approval to a bylaw prohibiting outdoor fires between sunset and sunrise without written permission from the fire chief.

Transfer of the old Yates Street firehall from the fire department to the lands department so that it can be put up for sale was approved.

Ottawa Roundup

No Tie at All for Her

OTTAWA (UPI)—Citizenship Minister Ellen Fairclough declared yesterday she planned to attend the Feb. 17 opening of the new National Gallery without "a white tie or any other kind of tie."

The minister's declaration to the Commons served only to raise new problems, however, for Azellus Denis (L, St. Denis).

"But if I don't wear a white tie, will I have the pleasure of meeting the honorable lady there?" he wanted to know.

The minister didn't answer, but Speaker Roland Michener quipped that "we can't conduct such an agency here."

Thus ended the latest round of "controversy" over the proper form of dress for the opening.

A conference of provincial ministers to iron out wrinkles in the payment of compensation to silicosis victims was suggested in the Commons Thursday by John Taylor (PC, Vancouver Burrard).

United States practice attempts to jam Russian radarscreens have not interfered with commercial radarscreens at Canadian airports. Transport Minister George Hees said. But he added that such interference was "theoretically possible."

Trade Minister Churchill told the Commons his department is not planning any national campaign along the "Buy Canada" line.

Such a move was suggested to the House by Hubert Badian (L, Fort William). He made specific reference to encouraging Canadians to buy Canadian-made cars rather than imported models.

Hypocrisy on Gambling

AS with church property and public buildings of every kind, the use made of school buildings should set an example of rectitude and nothing on the shady side of the law should be permitted to go on in them. So the closure of schools in the Greater Victoria district to the staging of bingo or other games of chance is entirely proper and should have the support of all who would like to see children brought up to respect the law.

That a great many adults, quite likely a majority of them, fail to see anything evil in bingo is made obvious by the numbers attending games wherever they are held. Some confusion may thus be created in the minds of young people who read of thousands of grown-ups attending bingo games to compete for prizes valued at thousands of dollars and then are told that it is an unlawful game not to be countenanced in their school halls. Yet the fact is that under a strict interpretation of the code bingo or any other game of chance is unlawful, and to permit the use of the schools for that purpose would be to encourage disregard for the law among children.

From this unassailable decision of the school authorities, prompted by advice from the attorney-general's department, it becomes more than ever apparent that the whole issue of games of chance is in need of review. The root of the trouble lies in the Criminal Code which, contrary to all doctrine as to right and wrong, sets the money value of prizes as the dividing line between what is lawful and what isn't.

But there is rot in the branches as well. While the statute is federal, enforcement is vested in the provinces and exercised at local levels. As a result there is no semblance of uniformity in what is done between province and province and even between city and city in the same province. In one, for example, people may be prosecuted for conducting bingo games, whereas a few miles away others are running wide open, under conditions marking them as plainly illegal even under the strange concept of legality which the code propounds.

How can children, or adults either, be persuaded to respect the law when confronted with a contradiction like that? Correct as it is, the interpretation of the law as applied to school property also adds to the aura of hypocrisy surrounding Canada's attitude towards gambling.

Busy Feminine Hands

SOME initials stick in mind and become part of the texture of society. Their familiarity gives them household status. So it is with the letters IODE. Perhaps not all people could recite correctly the name these represent—the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire—but the symbol has grown up with them. They connect it with good work done by countless women all across the country.

That in fact is the substance and quality of the IODE. Their myriad chapters—there are 11 in Victoria alone—are quietly engaged in spreading at home and abroad the beneficence of philanthropic effort. All kinds of projects arouse their sympathy. They adopt schools and provide libraries for them; they assist immigrants; they help the needy in various ways; they contribute equipment and amenities to hospitals, homes and other institutions. Recreation, sports, entertainment for veterans and the blind, a helping hand to community undertakings—these and a host of other interests bespeak the letters IODE.

The Daughters of Empire this week celebrate an important anniversary. Tomorrow will be the diamond jubilee of this patriotic organization, which was founded as the century turned and which has ever since found lots to do for its busy feminine hands. As an expression of national mood and humane instincts its first tasks were in aid of troops in the Boer War, and in the two world wars of later date its similar efforts encompassed the provision of field kitchens, hospitals, canteens and a multitude of other compassionate gestures. Its patriotism has always been marked further by the number of scholarships it sponsors, thus enabling many students to contribute worthily to the life and prosperity of the nation.

A diamond jubilee is an event for any organization, and therefore tomorrow reflects a significant date in the IODE calendar. It will be marked locally by a jamboree at the Club Sirocco to be opened by the first lady of the province, Mrs. Frank Ross; and the occasion is a reminder of what the initials IODE stand for and the public support and interest which this organization merits.

Linked with Ypres

THERE are many Victorians who will recall Canadian troops quartered at the former Willows Grounds in the succeeding years of the First World War. Survivors of one such unit, the 30th Battalion, CEF, on Sunday will mark the 45th anniversary of its departure for the front. Its history is probably unique. The 30th Battalion landed in France at the close of the Second Battle of Ypres in April, 1915, and its 1,100 officers and men went at once as reinforcements into the depleted ranks of the 7th, 15th and 16th Battalions, CEF, each of which had suffered battle losses amounting to a major part of their effectives.

Less than a week after their arrival in the Ypres sector, these men fought in the ranks of the First Canadian Division in a blistering action at Festubert, and a few weeks later at Givenchy, where again Canadian casualties were critically heavy. There can be few Canadian volunteers of the period who found a shorter route between enlistment and action, or who gave a more spirited account of themselves under fire. There were many Victorians in the 30th Battalion, CEF, and when the unit was broken up they reinforced Victoria contingents in two instances out of three: the 50th Gordons in the 16th Battalion, and the 88th Fusiliers in the 7th Battalion. The reunion next week will recall a memorable one, when former schoolmates from this city met on the smouldering outskirts of Ypres, 45 years ago.

Interpreting the News

Macmillan Is Commended

BY ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PRIME Minister Macmillan is returning from Africa to a special welcome in Westminster.

His "wind-of-change" speech in Cape Town will be quoted for months to come. It has been enthusiastically welcomed by the British press and has made a deep impression on members of Parliament.

Among many Conservatives, there is the exhilarating feeling of relief that comes when a tricky problem of long standing, mentioned only in whispered asides, is finally faced fairly and squarely.

As for the Labor party opposition, it may be forced to concede that Macmillan has done just what it has been urging him to do.

One result is that Conservatives and Labor may edge closer to a bipartisan approach on Africa, confounding commentators who predicted that the handling of black nationalism would constitute the major difference between the parties in 1960.

Internationally, the Capetown address may impress South Africa with a sense of its isolation in the world.

"As a fellow member of the Commonwealth," Macmillan said in his recent speech, "we have always tried to give South Africa our support and encouragement, but I hope you will not mind my saying frankly that there are some aspects of your policies that make it impossible for us to do so without being false to our own deep convictions about the political destinies of free men to which in our own territories we are trying to give effect."

Macmillan's firm though friendly warning is hailed here as an historic declaration, and as a milestone in Britain's relations with South Africa.

One report is that Macmillan has told Prime Minister Verwoerd that Britain can no longer support South Africa at the United Nations on the apartheid issue.

International implications apart, reaction here suggests that Britain's roving prime minister has registered another personal triumph.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT WAS T. E. Lawrence, I think, who in the preface to his "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" said that until they write the dispatches the troops who serve would never get their due.

And that, of course, they cannot do.

The Ottawa Journal must have had some such thought in mind when in a caustic paragraph it said that generals were not the only people engaged in the last war.

Obviously the Journal has grown tired of the military memoirs pouring off the presses these days. It reminds these high-ranking authors that others had a hand in the matter too.

So they had, but they are not so articulate.

There is nothing to stop lesser military men from writing their memoirs, of course. The only trouble is that the public might not read them.

A private cannot compete with a field-marshal when it comes to startling disclosures.

On my shelves at home is a first-war book entitled "Her Privates We." It is a well-written, interesting story; I have read it twice. Yet at this precise moment I can't recall its substance.

That is because it doesn't deal with the famous, the celebrities, the figures of high renown.

When Bradley makes a scathing reference to Montgomery we all sit up and take notice; when Montgomery assails Eisenhower's competence our eyes pop with interest. One is always titillated by being taken behind the scenes and made privy to what went on in high places.

By comparison what Private Jones said to Lance-Corporal Smith or Sergeant Brown wrote about Sergeant-Major James seems dull and uninteresting. Too common, as it were.

We like to hear secrets about the famous. That is why movie magazines and gossip columns flourish, and the memoirs of generals and the like.

As with the man who bit the dog, the generals when they are biting each other—now a favorite diversion—also make news. Even if some of the egos currently on display tend to bore, nevertheless the memoirs of high-ranking military men are sure of avid reading.

In this respect generals never had it so good. For some of them at least the pen must be more profitable than the sword.

There are what might be termed the intermediaries to be considered; those spaced halfway between the private and the field marshal. They had a part in the war too.

Some of them do take to the printed word but unless they have been on the staff and close to the "greats" the appeal of their reminiscence is limited.

A regimental officer's recollections of his own unit, for instance, is of concern mainly to his own regiment. Even if it contains a bit of ginger—uncommon in this type of history—this doesn't excite the outsider because he is reading about strangers.

Then, too, generals have it in their power to win or lose a battle, something beyond the scope of less responsible soldiers. That adds to the savor of their memoirs.

Still art all one must feel inclined to agree with the Ottawa Journal when it remarks that the generals, "with a bit more taste and sensitivity" might remember they weren't the only people in the war.

They seem a bit too anxious to show how good they were and how poor the other fellow.

Joint Efforts for World Development

By PETER COUROPOULOS, from United Nations

THE gap between the underdeveloped and the industrialized countries is certainly not to be overcome by the projected International Development Association. But this offshoot of the World Bank is at least a step that all its 68 member governments are prepared to undertake.

The United States government, in particular, sees it as a beginning to a more active participation of Western Europe and Japan in helping the uncommitted nations. And it is mainly an outcome of the U.S. administration's present views on the world's economic situation.

The U.S.A. will be the association's largest shareholder and its strongest policymaking voice. In addition to the U.S. government's contribution of $320,290,000 to IDA's initial capital, American holdings of local currencies in some underdeveloped countries may also be made available to supplement specific development loans.

Second largest shareholder will be the United Kingdom with a contribution of $131,140,000. Canada's scheduled subscription will amount to $37,830,000. As in the World Bank, voting rights in IDA will be roughly proportionate to subscriptions.

Flexibility is the main feature of IDA's operations. Its less developed member countries will pay 90 per cent of their subscriptions in their own national currencies. Only 10 per cent of these subscriptions will be paid in gold or freely convertible currencies.

With this money, which will amount to an initial capital of $1,000,000,000, IDA may provide financing to governments, public or private interests or to international organizations for specific projects. Unlike the World Bank, which must obtain a governmental or comparable guar-

Myth Exploded

Pedestrians Aren't Blameless

PEDESTRIANS need a traffic-safety program aimed at saving their lives, according to an article in the current issue of the Imperial Oil Review.

Entitled "Are You Walking Yourself to Death?" the article quotes the Dominion Bureau of Statistics as estimating that one out of every four people killed on Canadian roads is a pedestrian.

According to one traffic expert quoted, "eight out of every 10 pedestrians are responsible for their own accidents," and "two out of every three pedestrians killed have either been violating a traffic ordinance or committing an unsafe act."

The article adds, "Nearly all pedestrians over 15 who are killed by motor cars are individuals who have never been licensed to drive." A Connecticut study of 1,100 pedestrian fatalities showed 95 per cent of them had been non-drivers.

The article proposes four ways to cut pedestrian deaths and injuries.

1. More information on pedestrian accidents as the basis for a stepped-up safety campaign.
2. Community programs of pedestrian safety education.
3. More traffic safety devices which can save lives.
4. Stricter traffic laws for pedestrians.

Drinking pedestrians have a worse record of intoxication than drinking drivers, the article continues, citing at least one 25-year survey completed not long ago in the Ohio area.

antee when lending to a borrower other than a member government, it is left to IDA's discretion whether or not to require such a guarantee.

IDA's financing is to take the form of loans. These will be repaid in easy terms, with long periods of grace, at a low rate of interest or even entirely free of interest.

Despite the suppleness of its projected operations, IDA is a far cry from the scheme the underdeveloped countries were asking for. These were putting pressure for the constitution of a UN fund to take care of the entire problem of economic development in the world, under the name of Special UN Fund for Economic Development (SUNFED). Such a project was said to require an initial capital of at least $100,000,000,000 to be effective, which is of course a great distance away from the proposed assets of IDA.

The immediate economic significance of IDA is still lessened by the association's provision that subscriptions to the initial fund will be payable over a five-year period. As a result, during 1961 there will be only $160,000,000 available for financing projects.

Nevertheless, IDA represents a certain advance in aiding the underdeveloped, because some countries are going to increase considerably their contributions. Japan and West Germany, for example, which contributed about half a million each to the Special Fund for Technical Assistance last year, are scheduled to contribute $33,590,000 and $52,960,000 respectively to IDA.

However that may be, the fact remains that IDA does not constitute a radical departure from the already existing schemes of help to the underdeveloped. It will facilitate the execution of certain projects, but it is not an all-round plan for lifting the non-industrial countries out of their underprivileged status.

The difficulties in realizing a world plan of economic development, at which all advanced economies would co-operate with the less developed countries, arise from the antagonism between East and West. The very fact that there is no functional interdependence between these two economic systems makes it impossible for them at this moment to undertake a common economic plan for the entire world, however desirable this might be.

In order to undertake such a general plan of world development, as the Indian delegation proposed during the last General Assembly, a great effort would be needed on the part of the advanced countries.

It seems that nothing less than a gradual and complete diversion of the actual defence expenditures of both East and West to such a plan would be sufficient to cover its costs.

Of course, the day for the adoption of anything similar to that is not here yet. But it cannot be said, either, that the Indian delegation was composed by fools for proposing it. The Indians knew well that the majority of the world cannot stay for long in a condition of utter destitution while the industries of the advanced countries go ahead by leaps and bounds.

The security of the rich nations is bound to be dependent on their ability to ensure an international economic equilibrium. A lopsided development of a few geographic areas would never last for long.

This is the reason why many observers here believe that in the coming summit conference or at the ministerial meeting of the Economic and Social Council in July there might be advanced some tentative proposals for common East-West action on the World's economic development.

The Packsack

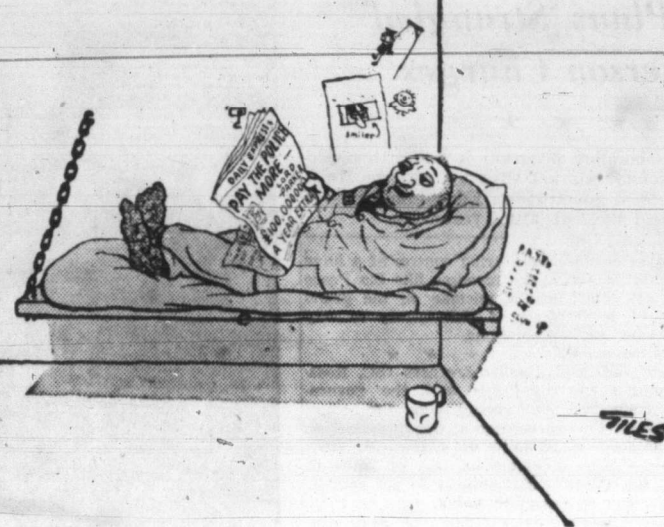

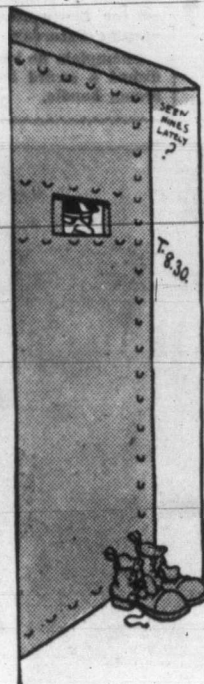

OF GREGORY CLARK

UNTIL you have taken part in a TV show you can have no idea of the unfeelingness, the impassivity, the awful mechanics of it.

That bright little picture you see on the TV is surely the strangest product so far conceived by man. It is a fragile flower beaten into existence and made sweetly to bloom before our eyes by weird satanic forces working in a grotesque shadowy cavern hung with great drums of light, strewn with serpentine cables, creepy with four or five great boxes of camera mounted on soundless wheels, surrounded by a crowd of ten, fifteen, twenty men and women in shirt sleeves or sweaters all gesticulating, waving secret signs, eyes glaring, faces grim, lips set, crouched under sawhorses, halfway up ladders, peering down from bullet-proof glass enclosures; a battle scene like that in the combat control of a battleship.

And all to present, on the little square in your living room, this pretty picture of a girl singing, lovers embracing, dancers dancing, or a lady showing you how to fluff an omlette.

Comedians prance and posture for you, full of laughter and life, cracking jokes. But four feet off the the side of what your set shows you, there lurks this company of demons: not a laugh in the lot of them, not a smile, not so much as a flicker of the eye as they, the engineers, mechanics, producers, directors, poised tense as tigers. You would think it was an atomic fission they were conducting instead of a lightsome program that the critics will kick the stuffing out of in tomorrow's paper.

Nature Desecrated

Will you allow me to add a few words in endorsement of Dr. Spicer's most excellent letter in this morning's (Feb. 10) Colonist.

Lack of funds may be some excuse for the deadly mass of "bootbox" houses that is creeping across the land; every touch of variety in line, or of originality, adds to the cost, I believe; but there is no excuse for desecration of the natural beauty we have been so freely given. Is it not possible to stop any further damage from being done to the torn and wounded sides of Mount Tolmie?

One knows of course that the muddy mess there now will dry and settle and be tidied up in time, but what will the finished result be in comparison with the free and peaceful loveliness of nature that once was there? Any town can have its man-made parks, and for some less fortunate than ourselves that is all they can have, but nature untouched has something that nothing else can give and that is more and more needed in the over-crowded lives of this day.

Let us do something to save what is left, before it is too late.

(Mrs.) Y. O. BISHOP.

Corporate Schizophrenia

In an outstanding lecture at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery Monday evening, Alan Jarvis, former director of the National Art Gallery, had high praise for the B.C. Electric Company's fine building in Vancouver—he called it one of the most beautiful buildings in North America: "It stands out like a good deed in a naughty world."

Admittedly, this building is a monument to efficiency achieved in excellent good taste.

So much for the B.C. Electric Company's sensitivity to art on the mainland!

On Vancouver Island this same company plans to cut an ugly swath through acres of nature's wilderness parkland and erect a monument of transmission towers and wires to mark that scene of death and destruction. What a "naughty deed" in our good green world! Surely such obvious inconsistency is unforgivable. Or must it be condoned on the grounds of corporate schizophrenia?

Precious Link

Re Mr. Bonne's letter on "A Borrowed Flag." I do not think his statements are quite correct.

The flag Canada flies, with its distinctive crest on the fly, is no more the Red Ensign or the British merchant marine flag than the Australian and New Zealand flags, with their distinctive star markings, are the British Blue Ensign. The Canadian crest contains the maple leaves and is quite distinctive. No other nation has it, nor can have it—it is emblematic of Canada alone.

One wonders why anyone who claims such loyalty to the Commonwealth as does Mr. Bonne should want to do away with the Jack, which is our precious heritage and links Canada to the Commonwealth. We must remember, too, that the people who have come to Canada from other countries knew before they came that it would mean giving up their own flag, and that upon adopting a new country they would automatically adopt a new flag, as we would do if we went to Poland or any other country. One could not cater to every nationality. This is Canada, and this is Canada's flag.

Before India

Nikita Waves Olive Branch

NEW DELHI, India (CP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev told Parliament yesterday all international disputes should be settled on the principle of peaceful co-existence.

"The way out of all disputes should be sought through negotiations and not through pressure and dictation," the Soviet premier said in the first major speech of his four-nation "peace and friendship" tour of Asia.

Addressing a joint session of parliament he seemed to be making a strong plea for a negotiated settlement in the bitter dispute between India and Red China over 50,000 square miles of their border territory.

Khrushchev received a huge ovation from standing members as he passed down the aisle, clasping his hands before his face in the traditional Indian greeting.

Vice-President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan introduced him as "a courageous fighter for peace."

Khrushchev received full V.I.P. treatment when he arrived but with none of the tumult or crowds that welcomed President Eisenhower in December.

Between 100,000 and 200,000 persons turned out to cheer the Soviet premier as he started his Asian tour—a marked contrast to the million and more who welcomed the American president.

Legislature Opens

Alberta to Ponder Anti-Strike Bill

EDMONTON (CP)—Newly-appointed Lieutenant-Governor J. P. Page Thursday opened the first session of the 14th Alberta legislature in one of the most colorful opening ceremonies in the province's history.

Legislation this session will include the introduction of a proposed provincial industrial taxation plan. The assembly will also be asked to enact amendments to the Alberta Labor Act designed to prevent strikes.

The speech forecast the regulation of the gas industry in Alberta.

Introduction of the second phase of the government's five year development plan was promised, providing for the paving of streets and construction of concrete sidewalks in the larger centres.

The plan called for expenditures of between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 in five years when it was announced by Premier E. C. Manning in 1958.

Placed before the members for their consideration will be the report of the royal commission on education.

Approval will be requested for a substantial appropriation to pay Alberta's share of the assistance being provided under the federal-provincial unthreshed grain assistance program for farmers whose crops could not be harvested.

Standing in the House: Social Credit 61, Liberal 1, Progressive Conservative 1, Independent Social Credit 1, Coalition 1. Total 65.

More than 500 guests saw the opening from the floor of the assembly chamber and from the galleries. Thousands of other Albertans watched the ceremony on a province-wide television network.

Rev. Peter Dawson, Social Credit member for Little Bow, was named speaker.

Big Program Faces Saskatchewan House

REGINA (CP)—Plans for a new department of industry and information and for a medical care plan of the highest possible quality were laid down by Saskatchewan's CCF government at the legislature opening yesterday.

The speech from the throne was delivered by Lieut.-Gov. Frank Bastedo at the opening of the fourth session of the 13th legislature.

High on the list of proposals for the legislature's consideration is legislation establishing the framework of a province-wide compulsory medical care scheme.

Another highlight calls for amendments to the Saskatchewan Elections Act to permit treaty Indians to vote in provincial elections.

The new department of industry and information will consolidate functions of the department of travel and information and other industrial development and publicity agencies.

An advisory committee on medical care will be appointed to examine the planned medical care scheme.

The speech said the rural electrification program, now nearing completion, will supply power to some 60,000 rural homes at the year end.

A program to bring water and sewage disposal facilities to farm homes will be placed before the legislature.

Funds for school grants will be increased, the speech said, and legislation will be introduced extending a Grade 12 scholarship program.

Other points of Premier T. C. Douglas' program:

A forecast that during the coming year many additional centres will be served with natural gas.

A program to assist rural telephone companies to build new lines.

Plans to provide technical and financial assistance to municipalities for expansion and improvement of parks.

A regional mental hospital to augment mental health services.

Construction of a new 100-bed geriatric centre at Swift Current to serve the south-west portion of the province. Construction of a traffic bridge over the North Saskatchewan River near Petrofka Ferry.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Army yesterday announced success in destroying a ballistic missile in the air with another missile—a development which could be highly significant in the weapons race with Russia.

The first mid-air missile against missile "killing" took place at White Sands, N.M., Jan. 29.

Success set the stage for an attempt to destroy a long-range intercontinental missile in tests 100 miles above the Pacific next year. The Nike-Zeus anti-ICBM missile is expected to be used, with a nuclear warhead.

Films of the "kill" showed an Honest John artillery rocket was blown up by a Hawk anti-aircraft missile on the first try.

The two missiles were traveling at a combined speed of 2,000 miles an hour. The Honest John had travelled 10 miles when it was intercepted by the Hawk, which had rocketed four miles in 15 seconds.

Jury Braves Gales Along Death Route

BOSTON (UPI)—A jury took a choppy harbor sail in a rainstorm yesterday along the route of a death ship.

Fourteen men who will decide the fate of Dutch radio operator Willem van Rie cruised Boston harbor in an excursion boat buffeted by rain and 50-mile-an-hour winds.

The jurors followed the course of the Dutch freighter Utrecht last Sept. 18 when Lynn Kaufman, shapely Chicago divorcee, was slain.

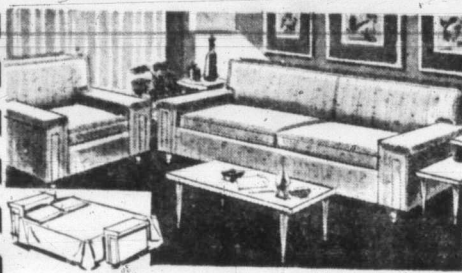

Van Rie, 31, is accused of beating Miss Kaufman, 23, and tossing her body overboard while the Utrecht was ending a 44-day voyage from Singapore.

Investors Seek Long-Term Bargains

6 Daily Colonist, Victoria, Friday, Feb. 12, 1960

Peak Interest Rates Past?

By HARRY YOUNG, Colonist Business Editor

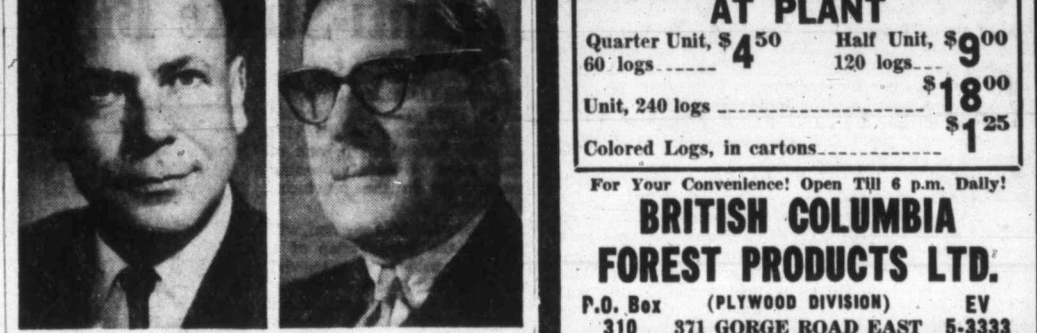

A rekindling interest in medium and longer term government bonds, could be a sign that the peak of interest rates has now been passed, and that investors are looking for bargains based more on duration rather than liquidity.

Since the Bank of Canada's 4% per cent Canada's of 1963 have risen a full point to 5.5%.

Meantime the upward movement in the shorter terms has not been so pronounced, and this could indicate a more favorable borrowing trend in the months to come.

Sex Pollster Only Scolded

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Cecil Cook, high school teacher who took a poll of his students' sex habits, is free to go back to work.

The state board of education voted 7-0 to clear him of charges of immoral or unprofessional conduct, but scolded him for "poor judgment."

NEW YORK — Vito Genovese, 62, described as one of the top Mafia chieftains in the U.S., surrendered to begin serving a 15-year prison term for narcotics violations.

LONDON — Queen Mother Elizabeth is recovering rapidly after injuring her leg in a slight accident. Details of the mishap were not given.

GILLINGHAM, England — Frederick Beconshall, 32, called Britain's laziest man and a "one-man national debt," has started serving his fourth six-month jail term in five years for neglecting himself and his wife.

ERIE, Pa. — Nine-year-old Virgil Smartwood, rescued after being swept 2½ miles through an underground sewage tunnel, said: "I hollered all the way."

LONDON — The Queen, expecting her third child any day now, went for an afternoon drive.

GRAVENWOEHR, Germany — Elvis Presley, who leaves the U.S. army March 10, got his sergeant's stripes yesterday.

'Garbage'—or 'Big Brother?'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The mystery satellite on a polar orbit around the earth is probably "space garbage"—the casing of an early U.S. Discoverer, Air Force Secretary Dudley Sharp said Thursday.

Sharp said he based his guess on the close comparison between the size of the casing of the Discoverer satellites and the dark object which emits no radio waves.

Sharp said the casing of the Discoverer—the most successful of all U.S. missiles in the field—measures 19.2 feet in length. Radio telescope observers have estimated the length of the mystery satellite at 19 feet.

Sharp said he had no information that Russia has launched a recent missile.

In London, Prof. Alla Maslovich, a Soviet scientist, said she doubts the object is of Russian origin.

But in Los Angeles, a former U.S. army research chief said the mysterious object probably is a Russian satellite sent up to spy on the U.S.

Lt. Gen. James Gavin (Ret.) said: "The headline 'Big Brother Is Watching You' probably wouldn't be far from wrong."

But he added: "We shouldn't get excited about it now. We've known they could do this for some time."

The U.S. defense department, on the other hand, said the satellite is tumbling end-over-end in such a way that the Soviets could not get information from it.

The department held to its original statement: The object probably is not of a military nature.

Negligent Parents Given Suspension

Raymond Price and his wife Shirley, of 3249 Maple, found guilty earlier of failing to provide necessities of life for their infant children, were given suspended sentence in Saanich police court yesterday.

Both were instructed, and indicated through counsel their willingness, to accept supervision of the Family and Children's Service in maintaining their home and caring for their five youngsters.

With this established, and because neither Magistrate William Ostler nor prosecutor Kenneth Murphy desired to break up the home, the two were placed under bond of $250 each for six months.

Said Magistrate Ostler: "The only good thing about this case is that the whole thing came to light. A disturbing factor is that while Mrs. Price is apparently willing to co-operate, the same feeling has not been evident in Mr. Price.

"You," the magistrate said to Price, "were apparently quite satisfied with conditions as they were. You seemed to have the feeling that, having fathered these children, your responsibility ceased.

"At the time, you said of the children's care, 'It is my wife's job.' Actually, it's up to you to pitch in and help.

"The whole thing is heart-breaking; a great wrong was done these children, and conditions must be improved. It is not surprising to learn that some of them have suffered respiratory troubles and, in one case, anemia."

Frank Robert Carlow, 2607 Selwyn, was fined $50 payable forthwith, or in default 30 days' hard labor, on conviction of supplying liquor to a minor. Offence occurred Dec. 11.

An elderly Victoria woman was put under bond of $250 for six months after pleading guilty in city court to charges of theft under the value of $50 at the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. store and Hudson's Bay Company store.

Margaret Lee, 1133 Grant, who took goods worth a total of $30.68, said she didn't know what she was doing because she'd been drinking beer. She was ordered to give up beer and to keep herself out of trouble.

Church Youth Leader Held

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rev. Gordon Sears, 37, Vancouver director of the Baptist Church's Youth for Christ organization, was arrested Wednesday and charged with having relations with a girl under 14.

Magistrate J. Bartman set bail at $10,000. The offence is alleged to have occurred between Dec. 17 last year and Jan. 2. It is reported that police believe the girl, 12 years old, is pregnant. Sears, married and with three children, was arrested by morality squad detectives.

He appeared in police court was still in jail at mid-day, ap- on the charge yesterday and parently unable to raise the was remanded for a week. He required bail.

Called "blue men" and "knights of the Sahara," strange Touareg tribe makes its living by selling camels. Young Canadian adventurer Peter Stollery took this picture of some Touareg nomads deep in the desert.

Sahara Odyssey

Strange Nomads, Cool Beer —Desert Crossing Was Over

This is the last of a series of articles on a crossing of the Sahara by adventurous, 24-year-old Peter Stollery of Toronto.

By PETER STOLLERY

On the map, the Touareg village of Tessalit is no more than a dot. But it was much more than that to me.

Just before we reached it, I had seen the first small bushes I had seen since pushing into the Sahara Desert.

Not the Same

Sure, there had been palm trees around the oasis, but that's not the same thing. To see something growing on its own is quite an event after the Tanzeurouit.

After a passport and customs check by the one gendarme who is unfortunate enough to be stationed there, I went looking around the town of Tessalit.

Rugged Hills

It's different from other towns in the desert. Jutting out of the Tanzeurouit like a castle are the small, rugged, rocky hills that form the western edge of the Hoggar. Nestled in between these hills is Tessalit. There are a few Arabs, a few blacks but most of the inhabitants are "the blue men," the Touaregs.

The French call the Touaregs "the knights of the Sahara." Strong, tall, handsome men, they are only found in the extreme reaches of the south Sahara. They are Moslems and are white but they're not Arabs. No one is sure who they are.

Two Symbols

The Touaregs founded Timbuctu.

They have two famous symbols. The best known is the blue veil the men wear. Touaregs differ from other Moslems in that the men wear the veil and the women don't.

Reversing the positions of other Moslems, the woman is considered to be the head of the household.

Cross Shape

The second symbol is the Touareg cross. This cross is one of the reasons many think they were once Christians. The horn of their camel saddles is in the shape of this cross.

Walking around the market in Tessalit, I saw some of the most beautiful camel saddles I've ever seen. Some of the crosses in front were made out of what I'm sure was pure silver. One man was loading a white camel. He was wearing two cartridge belts and packing a long, ancient looking Mauser rifle. It was like stepping back a century.

Almost None

After Tessalit, there were more bushes and the odd thorn tree. We saw many Touaregs but practically no Africans. At one place the driver stopped for tea. I noticed sitting under a bush a Touareg and his woman. He invited me to take some mint tea.

It was much cooler (although the temperature was still 115 degrees) and my driver said he was going to make the Niger River and Gao by nightfall. The other trucks decided not to continue until the next day.

Rolled Along

We rolled along seeing more natives along the road. There were small, naked black children, waving as we went by.

All at once, there was the Niger River. There were tiny dugout canoes, and the muddy river had dried almost to a

It's White Cane Week

The importance of treatment in combating blindness was illustrated at the end of last year when Royal Jubilee Hospital installed a special orthoptic department for the prevention and cure of eye diseases.

"This is a new service as far as the hospital is concerned," medical superintendent Dr. Murray Anderson said yesterday. "But it is one that was needed if we were to offer full facilities to our patients, the community and our medical staff."

The department was formerly operated as a private clinic in the Medical Arts building by a group of Victoria residents. The transfer to Royal Jubilee included the clinic's $4,000 in donated equipment.

"Patients are referred to the department by their eye doctors for specialized tests and eye exercises which can cure some eye troubles before they become a serious problem," Dr. Anderson said.

The department at present operates only on a part-time basis. An orthoptist is present all day Monday and Tuesday, and on Friday mornings. Hospital officials hope to extend service.

They also plan to purchase a tonometer, the only remaining piece of equipment necessary. This machine, costing about $1,000, is used in the diagnosis of glaucoma, a disease that causes blindness by an increase of pressure of fluid in the eye.

This week is National White Cane Week in Canada. A. G. Robbins, acting president of the board of the Victoria branch, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, said yesterday there were three ways to prevent blindness.

"Always wear protective goggles when working with abrasives or chemicals," Mr.

Robbins said. "Also, get plenty of exercise and sleep. Good health means good sight. Finally, take your children to the doctor when they develop headaches and listlessness. They may have poor vision."

Longden Thrown, Not Hurt

Jockey Johnny Longden, 53, is riding hard and still winning at Santa Anita, Calif. But he gave his fans a scare Thursday afternoon while aboard three-year-old filly Curragh Queen when she fell as the eight-horse field reached the far turn in a six-furlong race.

The crowd of 19,000 was hushed at the sight. Longden, who had the wind knocked out of him, was rushed to the track hospital by ambulance but left later under his own power.

Longden, who has been riding for 23 years, has 5,403 victories—tops of any jockey.

high over a tangle of players and past the outstretched arm of rookie Detroit goalie Dennis Riggan.

Bruins' win gave them 50 points in 34 games and a tie for the final NHL playoff position with Chicago. The latter club has played 55 games.

Other Boston goals were scored by John Bucyk and Guy Gendron who scored his 20th of the season. Rookie Murray Oliver scored both Detroit goals, giving him 15 for the season.

Bucyk and Oliver matched first period goals before Gendron scored what appeared to be the winner at 14:13 of the final. Gendron deflected a shot by Charlie Burns past Riggan.

Armstrong then scored his goal at 18:49 but Detroit battled back with Oliver connecting again with a minute remaining.

Detroit yanked Riggan in the final minute but could not beat veteran Boston goalie Harry Lumley.

Lumley had 32 stops during the game, 12 in the final period as Detroit outshot Boston 13-5. Riggan had 22 saves.

Riggan was playing his fourth game as a replacement for Terry Sawchuk, the regular Detroit goalie who is receiving a rest from constant pressure this season.

Glen Harper's Duncan Rink Only Islanders Still 'Alive'

By JIM TANG
Colonist Sports Editor
KELOWNA — All Vancouver Island rinks with the exception of zone champion Glen Harper of Duncan were eliminated from the B.C. bonspiel on Thursday.

Victoria's Tony Gutoski, who started yesterday's play leading in the grand aggregate race with a 7-0 record and rated an excellent chance of qualifying for the provincial final, lost two tough games to drop out of everything and wind up with only four pairs of binoculars.

In a morning game Gutoski was beaten 8-6 by red-hot Van-cover rink skipped by Lyall Dagg, which evened the score after losing to Gutoski Wednesday evening in being knocked out of the unbeaten class.

It was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way with Dagg, who has been curling brilliantly himself, having a slight edge. Dagg took a 7-6 lead into the home end and counted one when Gutoski, playing for the win rather than the tie and an extra end, just missed a double takeout.

Harper then made certain he wouldn't have to face his old nemesis in Consols play: down by taking Gutoski out 5-4 in the semi-finals of "B" primary.

It was another in the series of close ones for the Victoria rink with the game perhaps being lost on the sixth end. It was tied at two-all when Gutoski slipped a foot too far into the back ring with his last shot and left Harper laying two for a 4-2 bulge.

Gutoski blanked the seventh deliberately and the strategy paid off when he got two back on the eighth for a 4-4 tie but the one-rock edge had been lost and Harper was able to blank the ninth end. On the tenth, Gutoski had to make a perfect freeze on shot rock in the four-foot ring to try and save the end. The rock came to rest alongside only an inch from being shot and Harper didn't have to throw his last rock.

Taylor THROUGH
Gar Taylor of Victoria was eliminated on a morning draw losing to Reg Stone of Trail in the eighth of a primary, 9-6. Harry Stitzaker of Port Alberni also went out in the eighth, losing to Herb Lemke of Summerland 10-9 in the eighth of B-primary after coming a 7-2 deficit to tie it up on the ninth.

Gene Koster's Nanaimo rink which started the day alive in the two tertiary events lost first to Bill Carse of Penticton and then to Fritz Farenholtz of Nelson to go home.

Sole Angler, One Line Good Move
VERNON (CP) — Game director Frank Butler says a proposed regulation limiting a sole angler in a boat to one fishing line "is an excellent conservation move."

Mr. Butler told the Vernon Fish and Game Club, which is protesting the regulation, that "as large fish are at a premium and represent only a very small percentage of any given fish population, it becomes increasingly important to distribute these few large fish to as many individuals as possible."

England's Bowlers Subdue Jamaicans
KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — England's MCC cricket team took Jamaica's seven remaining first innings wickets for 137 runs on the second day of their match here Thursday and at the close were 257 runs behind with eight wickets in hand.

Freddie Trueman's pace-bowling and the leg-spinners of Ken Barrington and Tom Greenough found cheap victims when Jamaica resumed at their overnight score of 237 for three. Jamaica was all out for 374. MCC was 117 for two in reply at the end of the day.

Only Reg Scarlett stood firm for Jamaica Thursday, scoring 72 not out in an hour and 44 minutes, with 11 fours. It was the first time he had reached the half-century in his first-class career.

Trueman, Barrington and Greenough each took two wickets. Trueman finished with the innings figures, four for 54.

Island Golden Gloves Set for Nanaimo
NANAIMO (CP) — The Vancouver Island Golden Gloves boxing tournament, scheduled to open here Saturday night, has attracted a starry entry list.

Champion fighters from Army, Navy, Esquimalt, Duncan, Port Alberni and Chemainus boxing clubs have filed entries.

Interest centres in the light-heavyweight division contested by Danny Daniels of Ladysmith Boxing Club, recent winner of the Buckskin Gloves 165-pound title in Vancouver. Daniels is undefeated in his short fight career of four bouts. All victories have been by knockouts.

Army's light-heavyweight, Pte. Emerson Manspinner, has been entered along with four other Canadian army champions.

The heavyweight division includes Charley Beekis, navy boxer and former eastern command champion.

Manitoba Picks Curling Champs
First provincial curling championship rink was named in Winnipeg last night when

Mac Scales of Winnipeg Granite won 10-9 over Billy Walsh of Winnipeg Fort Rouge.

Victory gave Scales a record of 24 victories out of 25 games in the Manitoba Curling Association bonspiel and the right to represent his province at the Brier in Fort William March 7-11.

Moving west, the 1959 Canadian champions, skipped by Ernie Richardson of Regina, gained the Saskatchewan final against Glen Richardson of Saskatoon (no relation). They play off at the weekend.

Opening round of the Alberta playoff starts today in Lethbridge. Entered are Matt Baldwin, Edmonton; Stu Beagle of Calgary; Barry Lowe of Yellowknife, N.W.T.; and Lloyd Larson of Sexsmith.

Brentwood Cagers Play Doubleheader
Play in the Brentwood Basketball League continues tonight with a doubleheader at the Brentwood Community Hall.

Brentwood plays Sooke in a midweek boys preliminary at 7:30 p.m. Feature game has Brentwood meeting Hudson's Bay in a junior girls' contest at 8:45.

empty-handed. As things turned out, Stone and Dagg went on to qualify for the B.C. finals joining the 10 zone champions in the double event knockout play which starts today with two draws.

Dagg carried on after beating Gutoski by trimming Ray Ottem of Kamloops 10-4 in the semi-finals of B primary, Ottem conceding before the eighth end was completed.

After defeating Taylor, Stone took an extra-end win from Lloyd Neff's Vancouver rink skipped by Earl Ewart, to get another chance to win his seventh provincial title and his sixth chance to play in the Dominion playdowns at Fort William next month.

Both Stone and Dagg have to be conceded a fair chance of carrying on to win the Consols title. The Trail veteran still is a tough man to beat and his rink came on steadily and is currently curling in top form. Dagg has a steady crew and was good enough himself to rate with Gutoski as the 'spiel's outstanding shotmaker.

Draw for the Consols playdowns was made late Thursday. In A event it's Dick Topping of Summerland vs. Vinthers of Vancouver; Al Engstrom of Prince George vs. Joe McKinnon of Kamloops; Harper vs. Joe Mitchell of Prince Rupert; Eric Bisgrove of Kimberley vs. Herb Taylor of Whitehorse in the extra series. And it's Dean Hayes of Haney vs. Mickey Brennen of Trail and Dagg vs. Stone in the eighth.

In B Consols event the draw in order is: Hayes vs. McKinnon; Mitchell vs. Dagg; Brennen vs. Bisgrove; Vinthers vs. Stone; Engstrom vs. Harper and Taylor vs. Topping.

Chairman Harry Young urged reviving previous plans for a new course at Elk and Beaver Lakes during the annual Victoria and District Golf Committee meeting held Thursday night.

"This year has seen an overall growth in the number of active golfers in the district, and at least two of the clubs are at the limit of their membership. It seems reasonable that in five or 10 years there will be a shortage of golfing facilities in Victoria, just as there is in Vancouver today," said Young.

"On these grounds I suggest the committee should offer to act in an advisory capacity to any public body that is interested in creating new golfing facilities in the district."

"I have in mind the interest of the Saanich reeve in reviving the old plans for a golf course at Elk Lake and Beaver Lake. A course open to the public at this site might be a valuable asset to golf in this district within the next few years," said Young.

Young added that over 200 boys enrolled for the district's golf tuition course last spring and many of them have either joined clubs or are playing on local courses.

OFFICERS ELECTED
Meanwhile, VDGC officers were elected at the Thursday meeting.

Young, Colonist financial editor and golf columnist, was unanimously returned as chairman for a third term. Vice-chairman is Sid Holland of Gorge Vale. Secretary-treasurer is Leo Derman of Gorge. M. Bartkow of Colwood and R. A. Robison of Victoria Golf Club were named inter-league committee members.

Ken Lawson of Uplands is chairman of the junior development program and convener of winter medal competition.

Frank Scroggs of Uplands is convener of button competition.

Dates were also decided for major competitions in 1960.

Island Open qualifying round play will begin March 27 at Colwood. Other dates are April 3, 10, 17, 24 and May 1. Final will be held at Gorge Vale.

City championship, a 54-hole competition, will be held June 5 and 12 at Uplands, while the Zone 1 tournament goes June 19 at Victoria Golf Club.

Matson Trophy competition will be held Sept. 11 at Colwood.

What Would You Do With Shetland Pony?

What do you do with a horse in the city? The Reg Gerrard family of 910 Dale Street received many solutions for the problem Thursday. Nine-year-old son George had won a pony at Wednesday night's hockey game at Memorial Arena. Telephone calls flooded the Gerrard home yesterday. People wanted to buy the two-year-old pony and others offered to board it at local farms. "We're thinking everything over. It's a tough decision," said Reg.

Garden Notes

Want a Big Cabbage?

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

We got started yesterday on our annual ramble through the seed catalogues, picking out a few vegetable varieties which seem suitable for our climate and soil. As I pointed out yesterday, my selection of varieties isn't necessarily the best kinds, for life is too short and garden space too limited to try them all. But at least the varieties I mention have done well in my own garden and, what is probably more important, their flavor has been good.

In green beans, we switched from Topcrop to Tendergreen last year, even though it is a week later in coming into bearing. The flavor seems a bit better—more buttery—and the vines don't seem so prone to mildew, rust and all the other ills which beset beans.

We get our first picking about 52 days after sowing and the cropping can be stretched over a period of three weeks if you pick conscientiously, making sure no pods are left on the vines to ripen their seeds. This is very important with all beans, for the vines pack up and quit if they succeed in producing ripe seed.

We switched varieties in our yellow wax beans, too. For years we grew nothing but Pencil Pod Black Wax, but a trial last year of Kinghorn Wax convinced us it has a slight edge on the older variety. You get more beans per bush, for one thing, and the stringless pods are a bit more tender. Finger-size beans are ready to eat in 45 days, full-size ones in about 53 days from sowing.

If you like a really big cabbage, I can recommend one called O. S. Cross, a first-generation hybrid which makes enormous, flattish heads, very solid and firm, in about 105 days. We don't grow O. S. Cross ourselves, but my neighbor Ernie takes a great pride in his and has to borrow a wheelbarrow to deliver a head to his kitchen door.

In our family, we prefer a little cabbage we can eat up easily in one meal, for left-over cabbage has about as much flavor as a mouthful of blotting paper. We are very fond of Early Jersey Wakefield, a small, cone-shaped cabbage of excellent flavor, maturing in only 65 days from planting-out. It isn't as solid and tight as its big brothers and is green all the way through rather than blanched in the middle, which speaks well for its vitamin and mineral content. The leaves are not big enough for making holupchi so, when we fix ourselves a batch of these delicious cabbage rolls, we scrounge some of the enormous outer leaves from Ernie's O. S. Cross plants.

The only carrots we grow are Nantes Coreless, admittedly not the best keeper of the carrot tribe, but sweeter than any other variety we have tried. These are full-grown in about 10 weeks, making a thick, cylindrical root 1½ inches thick and a little less than seven inches long, tender and coreless and of a fine orange scarlet color. We sow fairly thickly, then eat the thinnings, starting when they are no bigger than your little finger.

While we don't grow carrots for winter storage—they are always so cheap and plentiful at the grocer's—a very good variety for this purpose is Red Cored Chantenay. This is a short, stumpy carrot that's easier to grow on poor land than the long, skinny, aristocratic types and with a fairly high sugar content.

Famous Name

Sarah Triumphant in a Flop

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—She bears the greatest name of our time and it has been her tragedy in the past. But last night she wove the qualities it conveys into something approaching triumph.

For one of the few times in her acting career in her homeland—and she is now 45—copper-haired Sarah Churchill emerged completely from the colossal shadow of her father, Sir Winston Churchill.

And she did it in a flop play. To be the child of an immortal may be private heaven. It can be public hell. It means being measured against standards achieved only once or twice a century no matter how remote from the original is the field of endeavor.

Sarah Churchill has always been judged as the daughter of her father with all the psychological handicaps that entails.

Success? Well, that's only to be expected, isn't it?

Anything less than success? Unthinkable.

No wonder as a girl of 21 she answered a chorus call for Cochran's young ladies—the British equivalent of the Zeigfeld Follies—under the name of Sarah Smith.

She was hired, strictly on her own merits, but it was not long before someone noticed the striking beauty's striking resemblance to the famed womenfolk of the Earls of Airline—her mother's blood line.

To keep the secret a little longer the producer ordered all the showgirls to wear red wigs. But from then on Sarah Churchill bore the burden of her name, and her father's fame.

Sir Winston adores his headstrong daughter and she has said she can not imagine living in a world without him. He calls her "mule" for the stubborn determination she inherited from him.

She married for the first time against family opposition. Her second husband, society photographer Anthony Beauchamp, committed suicide in 1957. The shock took years to dissolve.

A year later she was arrested in Los Angeles and fined 50 dollars. "I was more ill than drunk," she said. But she knew that for the daughter of Sir Winston a note on a police blotter explodes into international headlines.

Twice in Britain she was fined, thereafter, for arguments with a cab driver and in a coffee shop. Later when playing a stage role of a dissipated beauty she said of the character:

"At least we have one thing in common—we know how to burn our scandals at both ends."

Her stage and screen career has always been more successful.

Hollywood Today

Otto's Watching Israel

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Otto Preminger is keeping a worried eye on the Israel-Syria situation. He might have to change his plans to film all his "Exodus" movie in Israel. The epic, starring Paul Newman and Eva Marie Saint, is due to start the end of next month.

And for the uninitiated, Eva Marie has never been a saint, just an average, rather mischievous female.

In hopes of placating the British—the "Exodus" book was very anti-English—Preminger promises to sign a London actress for the tempestuous role of Jordanna, sister to Paul Newman's Ari.

It's hard to believe that Prince Ali Khan is only 48 years old. I sympathize with the TV interviewer who the three to five hours of sleep the living-loving Khan limits himself to.

Don't be too surprised if Aristotle Onassis attempts to patch things up with the wife who recently left him.

And Betsy Drake, separated from Cary Grant, receives a spray of orchids twice a week, from Cary, no matter where he happens to be.

Kirk Douglas was invited by the Maharajah of Cochin Behar to shoot tigers with his in India. "But it costs $6,000 per person, with room and board at the palace," said Kirk, "and I've spent so much on 'Spartacus' that I simply can't afford it."

Kirk's production has been a godsend to small-part player John Dahl. He worked the first week of the production a year ago, was paid for seven months without working, toiled a second week recently. "I bought two duplexes with my earnings," said John.

June Lockhart is also doing well, from "Lassie." She and husband John Lindsay recently bought the colossal house (with a colossal mortgage) that belonged to former Metro topper Dore Schary. "It has seven bedrooms, eight baths and a Cinemascope projection room," said June.

Jose Iturbi, I learn, had raved about Maria Callas to producer Jean Dalmayre about a decade ago, and urged Jean to bring her to New York. So Jean called Callas' manager in Rome, but was informed, "She will not come to America until she is thin." At the time Maria weighed in at 280 pounds! She went to Switzerland, and undertook an awful-sounding diet. Today, Maria weighs 113, which is too little for her tall frame.

Propaganda Films Hit By Czechs

VIENNA (AP)—The Czechoslovak Communist trade union newspaper asked its readers which Czech films they liked best in 1959. It got some stinging replies.

Prace ran one blast from a reader in the town of Frydek as an example of depraved taste.

"Czechoslovak films make me sick, and I don't go to them any more because I can't risk my health," said the reader.

"Now I consider it a great shame that the Czechoslovak public never gets to see a film with Kim Novak, who after all is of Czech descent."

Prace asserted that the outspoken writer, and others who expressed similar sentiments, had had taste because "they wouldn't appreciate the kind of films which show young Communists building a socialist world, they disregard the achievements of their socialist homeland but admire the nonsense of their rich and foolish aunt in the United States."

Poring over old college records, from left, R. D. Ferguson, Mrs. Jean Baine and R. H. Roy begin search for names and present addresses of some 15,000

And Normal School

Wanted: 15,000 Grads Of Victoria College

Wanted: Names and addresses of some 15,000 old grads of Victoria College and the now defunct Normal School.

Alumni lists—the first complete ones ever compiled here—are being made up for use in the $2,500,000 building fund drive for Victoria University.

ALUMNI GROUP
But it is hoped they ultimately will result in formation of the first Victoria University alumni association. R. H. Roy, head of the Victoria branch of UBC Alumni Association, is chairman of the committee that has taken on the job of tracking down graduates scattered throughout the country and overseas.

Twin headaches facing the group: many male graduates have moved away while most of the girls married and now bear names unknown to their alma mater.

Some of the names are available, from college records, but a thorough job of compiling a complete list of alumni has never been attempted until now.

The committee has asked parents or friends of graduates who have moved away to get in touch with the university fund drive office with the present whereabouts of alumni.

OTHER MEMBERS

Other members of the committee are: Mrs. Jean Bain, Mrs. Winsome Oliver, R. D. Ferguson, Ken McKay, Bill McCarter, Peter Henderson, Hugh Farquhar, R. G. Wallace, Bill Scoones, Mrs. Ver Foster, Hugh Ferguson, and Harry Evans.

Finch Faces Death Scene

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch was confronted yesterday with a secret tape recording which the prosecution said showed he made up the whole tearful, death-side scene with his wife.

The surgeon, his voice unshaken and sincere, denied it emphatically and said the truth was the only weapon he had to save himself and, perhaps, his mistress, Carole Tregoff.

Finch said he still would marry the 23-year-old redhead if he is freed and "if Carole will have me."

The cross-examination of the 42-year-old doctor reached a smashing climax when prosecutor Fred N. Whichello produced the surprising recording of remarks Finch made to police in Las Vegas on July 20.

Mrs. Barbara Finch was killed outside her home July 18.

The recording, made without Finch's knowledge, showed that he told police he didn't know his wife was dead until he had driven from their West Covina, Calif., home and arrived in Las Vegas.

Finch had told the jury he knelt by his wife, heard her last forgiving words and did not leave her until he examined her and found her dead after an accidental shooting.

"I suggest you made up the whole touching death-bed scene you have told here," Whichello said.

"That is not true," Finch said. "That is absolutely false, every single word of it."

Prosecutor Fred N. Whichello accused Dr. Finch of leaving his wife "like a dead animal on the lawn" instead of carrying her body into their home.

The 42-year-old surgeon paled under the words but his composure did not break nor did he display anger.

The prosecutor made a brief reference to the last words Barbara Jean Finch was said to have whispered to her husband before she died. Finch said she told him she was sorry and "Take care of the kids."

"Is there any reason you couldn't have picked your wife up and carried her into one of the houses (Finch's or his father's) instead of leaving her like a dead animal on the lawn, Dr. Finch?" asked Whichello.

Finch sat stunned for a moment. The courtroom at his murder trial with Carole Tregoff was hushed.

Then he mumbled: "I don't know."

Big Project Starting

1,600 Set to Leave Vancouver Slums

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sixteen hundred people will be moved and their blighted homes destroyed in the first step of Vancouver's 20-year plan to clear out its slums.

City council learned yesterday the homes affected in the opening stage are in the city's immediate east end and surrounding industrial False Creek.

Low-rent public housing will be built to provide homes for the people displaced in the giant wrecking project.

Cost of acquiring the land and clearing it will be almost $4,000,000—the cost to be shared by the three levels of government.

Total cost for the 20-year project may reach $75,000,000. The new houses will be built before the old homes come down.

Later plans include skyscraper-type apartment blocks, row houses and shopping centres.

$50,000 Loss In 'Log' Fire

A fire which started in a fresh batch of pres-to-logs caused an estimated $50,000 damage in an Esquimalt fuel company warehouse last night, and only a lucky break kept damages from climbing to at least twice that amount.

Canada 'Dummy' For U.S.

OTTAWA (UPI) — West Coast CCFer Harold Winch charged the government yesterday with "absolute, plain, unadulterated stupidity" for being "the ventriloquist's dummy of United States foreign policy."

The veteran socialist MP from Vancouver East said External Affairs Minister Howard Green yesterday "backtracked on all independence of action, and his statement made it clear that he wears the same blinkers that have been in evidence in Canadian foreign policy over the many years."

During the Commons external affairs debate Winch said the government was "leading the people down the garden path to talk about world disarmament and then to stand up and say that China will not be recognized diplomatically in the United Nations or represented on the disarmament committee."

'Drunken Sailor' Budget Breaks Tory Promises

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Thomas Reid, B.C. Liberal, says the federal government is spending money "like a drunken sailor" despite pre-election promises to cut expenditures.

He told the Senate that Prime Minister Diefenbaker

Esquimalt firemen worked for two hours to control the fire at Solid Fuels Ltd., 876 Viewfield Road. It had started in a shipment of pres-to-logs, apparently still hot, which had been delivered during the afternoon.

"I'd say there is $50,000 damages," said William Richards, president of the company. "And at that we were lucky. There were two full oil trucks in the building, and if the fire hadn't been discovered when it was, they may have blown, and there's no telling how much more damage that would have caused."

Fire was discovered at 6:30 p.m. by Jock Melvin, a driver who happened to be working late. He phoned the fire department, and the trucks were driven to safety. There was no one due at the plant until 9:30 p.m.

While firemen worked to stop the fire, the smoldering logs were hauled outside by fork-lift trucks. Mr. Richards estimated that 2,000 units, each containing 240 logs, were destroyed either by the fire or by the water firemen used to quell the blaze.

"Any log that was touched by water is useless, so we can't say exactly how much damage was done," Mr. Richards said.

The plant and contents were fully insured.

BASKING BUSTER AND MRS. LIND

Buster Takes to Quatsino

Adopted Seal a Pet But Not a Captive

QUATSINO—A hair seal, by nature a predator with a bounty on his nose, has become a lovable, loyal, playful and entertaining new resident of this isolated community at the north-western tip of Vancouver Island.

Buster, orphaned by a bounty-hunter's rifle, was "adopted" as an infant by the A. R. Lind family. Nursed and pampered to grown sealhood, he shows no inclination of defecting to his brethren although he's as free as any of them.

Buster flippers out to sea for hours on end, visits other beaches when people on shore call him in, romps with children and dogs in the water. He's just as happy sleeping in the house, under the house or next to the lapping tides.

ONLY HOLD

"Our only hold on him," says Mrs. Lind, "is the fact that he enjoys our company, and we certainly enjoy his." Buster was brought to Quatsino at the tender age of one day by an Indian boy who asked Mrs. Lind if she would like to have it.

The seal—then covered with long, tan baby hair—and foster mother took to one another from the first swig on the nipped bottle of canned milk. "His feeding cry sounded much like a child calling 'Ma', and was as good as an alarm clock," says Mrs. Lind.

As Buster stretched longer and longer and his hair disappeared, he developed two problems: he had no urge to take a dip in the briny and turned his nose up at sea food offerings!

"He seemed to hate the water. I had to wade out and take him with me," says Mrs. Lind. "And he would only stay as long as I was there with him."

"Then nature asserted itself and he began to swim alone—but for only short periods." He started to enjoy his plunges after children splashed in the sea with him.

Eventually, he would stay in all day, coming out only when he was hungry.

He has answered the call of the sea on a number of occasions, one time he was off on a three-week tour, but he has always returned.

FIRM SEAL

Buster now weighs about 150 pounds and is four feet long—a round, firm young seal.

Quatsino, and especially the children and the Linds, will feel a loss if Buster ever decides humans don't quite measure up to other hair seals. But up to now, Buster considers the Linds "his people."

Elderly Pedestrian Unhurt In Street-Crossing Mishap

An elderly pedestrian escaped serious injury when he was struck by a car while crossing Cook Street at 6:05 p.m. Thursday.

Kenneth Hughes, 78, of Suite 101, 1050 Richardson, suffering shock and a cut on the hand, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital.

He was crossing Cook at McClure when he was in collision with a car driven south on Cook by William G. Fairhead, 5064 Cordova Bay Road, police said.

Reeve Hits High Living

Religion Needed Even Before Court

Although a family and juvenile court is needed in Greater Victoria, there is a greater need here for an increase in religious activity and a decrease in the standard of "high" living in the home, Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said last night.

Alcohol, high debts and little interest in spiritual matters are largely responsible for the province's family problems and juvenile delinquency, he told the Kiwanis Club of Oak Bay.

"We are told that... we in British Columbia have a pretty fair share of that high standard of living, or perhaps it might be better to say a standard of high living."

"We have the dubious distinction of being the 'drinkingest' province... our asylums and psychiatric wards are full... our prisons and juvenile correctional institutions are bulging at the seams... the number of unmarried mothers is on the increase," he said.

"So, despite family courts and other social agencies, unless we get back to the spiritual values of life and away from our present materialism, the rot which has destroyed other nations may well creep into the moral fibre of our own nation."

Mr. Murdoch said that some young married couples go heavily in debt to acquire quickly all the luxuries of life that it took their parents years to obtain.

When unexpected sickness or layoffs occur, they are hounded by collectors. In desperation, they borrow money "to keep their creditors quiet, only to go deeper into debt," he said.

Charges Amuse Peterson

B.C. Education Minister Leslie Peterson last night guffawed loudly at charges the government is using supplementary school grants as "a political slush fund."

"That is priceless, simply priceless," he said when told of statements made here Wednesday by Arthur Guttman, Vancouver, a research director for the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

"Our finance formula is not perfect, but to make such a statement is just ignorant," the minister said.

He said the supplementary grants are made to bring the provincial government's share of school costs up to 50 per cent of the total.

Which school districts receive the grants is a matter decided by senior civil servants within the department, he said.

"I would be surprised that any informed or knowledgeable person would so accuse my department."

"It's so laughable—it's almost ridiculous."

He said he believed Mr. Guttman, who made his statements at a panel discussion at Belmont High School, is a "junior" in the BCSTA organization and did not speak for trustees.

"If he was speaking on behalf of the trustees and they don't want the supplementary grants they don't want the money..." he said, leaving the sentence unfinished.

Mrs. Wollenberg lived on stale bread and cheap tea until the loan in 1952 to install a hot water boiler in her home. For nearly two years, she paid $24 monthly out of her $30 social security and $25 state welfare payments.

If West Is to Catch Reds—It Had Better Get Going

If the Western world is going to catch up with Russia in the field of scientific and technical education, the next few years will be the time to do it.

So said Dr. Graham J. Odgers, senior scientific officer at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, in a speech on higher education in Russia to the Victoria Rotary Club yesterday.

Dr. Odgers, who speaks Russian, attended an international astronomical conference in Moscow during the recent Geophysical Year, and toured a large part of the country by car, without guide or interpreter.

A tremendous number of Russian men in the 38 to 45-year age bracket were killed in the Second World War, Dr. Odgers said, and there was the usual great upsurge of war babies who are now in the higher-education age bracket.

This gives Russia a numerical edge now; but the number in that bracket will be far smaller from now on.

All the emphasis in Russian education is on science and technology, said Dr. Odgers. That country's biggest building is the University of Moscow, containing 13,000 students in these fields. Another, smaller building houses about 6,000 who are taking a general arts course.

"Entrance requirements are very stiff," said the speaker. "Each year about 12,000 students apply for entrance, and only 3,000 get in."

"Every year, too, 120 mathematics students are taken into the university, selected by stiff competition from all over Russia. These students are very bright, and all are given scholarships."

"The students are extremely well treated, and work very hard, seven hours a day, six days a week."

"In the West, if a student didn't like the hard work, he could go out and do well for himself in business. Not so in Russia, where there is virtually one big civil service."

"The old theory in Russia of 'equal pay' has been quietly dropped. The educator, scientist and the like are paid very well indeed—about 40 times as much as a janitor, for example. The same cannot be said of the West."

"Russian universities are turning out about twice as many graduates as the United States. They are extremely good—but not better than those in the West."

Council Defers Decision

Battle Tide Shifts In Thetis Lake Issue

Anti-Power Line Faction Sees Chance of Success

New developments have swung the tide of battle over a Thetis Lake power-line easement.

B.C. Willing To Look Park Over

Recreation Minister, Earle C. Westwood said last night his department is prepared to study a proposal that it take over Victoria's Thetis Lake Park.

"This is the kind of area which we must preserve," the minister said just a few hours after the proposal was made by officials of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association.

He pointed out that Greater Victoria is sadly lacking sufficient park area, and added, "we would certainly send some of our people out there to look the thing over."

His deputy, David B. Turner, who met the conservationists' delegation, said he had asked them to make a formal request in writing.

Due to the proximity of the area, he felt that a survey of its potential as a provincial park could be carried out in about two weeks and that a report might follow a week later.

Councillor Todd:

$1,326,900 Too Much For Parks

A Saanich councillor said last night he doesn't think the municipality will spend "anything like" the $1,326,900 deemed necessary for park land purchases over the next 15 years.

His statement came a week after the municipality's planning department tabled a plan calling for joint municipal expenditures totalling $3,854,900 for the purchase of park lands in Saanich between 1960 and 1975.

The plan calls for contributions of $220,000 from other municipalities for the purchase of sites for regional parks.

Coun. Harold Todd said the plan "indicates that the costs would be in the millions even if all the other parties agree to help, which is unlikely."

Before yesterday, city council was counted as almost certain to approve granting the 26-acre easement to the B.C. Electric, despite the opposition of conservationists.

But yesterday, council voted to defer a decision to see if the provincial government is now interested in taking over the Thetis Lake property, and Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean, previously pro-easement, indicated he will change over to the other side.

MIND CHANGED

"Since the (waterworks) committee meeting, I think my mind is changed," he said.

If it has, the next council meeting will find at least four of the eight aldermen against the easement, and Mayor Percy Scurrell absent on a trip.

Council referred the matter back to waterworks and parks committees after E. H. Lohbrunner, president of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, said "one of the senior members" of the recreation and conservation department had indicated the province might now be interested in taking over the property.

SOLVE PROBLEM

"If they would take it over, that would solve our problem," said Mayor Percy Scurrell.

Mr. Lohbrunner presented an association brief calling on council to refuse "to bow to the pressure of expediency."

"We feel that this encroachment if permitted must be interpreted as a surrender to strong commercial pressure," he said, "as such, will it not constitute a dangerous precedent for similar acts of alienation in the future?"

TRIED BEFORE

Ald. Curtis recalled that the city had tried unsuccessfully before to give the property to the provincial government for development as a park.

Mr. Lohbrunner said the government's policy at that time was not to take over parks close to cities, "but since then they have accepted Newcastle Island (near Nanaimo) and others, and we have had indications from members that they are interested in Thetis Lake, although it's not official from the minister of recreation and conservation yet. We are seeing the deputy this afternoon."

Ald. McLean asked Mr. Lohbrunner if it was true that Victoria University was interested in preserving the area, and was assured that "they will be very, very interested in it for ecological studies."

The association was asked to report to the council committee on the results of its approach to the provincial government.

Official Toiled 'Like Slave' On New Downtown Plan

Victoria's assistant city engineer in charge of planning and inspection, Roderick Clack, spent more than 200 hours of his own time working on the new downtown improvement plan, Ald. Geoffrey Edgell told city council.

"I know," said Mayor Percy Scurrell. "He's worked like a slave on it — days, nights and Sundays."

Almost Unanimously

New View Street Plan Passed in Principle

Businessmen Happy With Big Scheme

New plan for a View Street parking building and shopping malls was almost unanimously approved in principle yesterday by city council.

And the executive of the Victoria Downtown Business Association notified council it considers the plan to revitalize the downtown section of Victoria "excellent."

Ald. Elmer McEwen alone opposed approving the plan at once in principle.

SURE-FOOTED

"We ought to be more sure-footed than in the past," he said, holding that council should first obtain more information.

Further action by council is expected to await consideration of provincial legislation the city has requested.

Council is seeking power to expropriate property for the parking facility, to build it across View, to establish a parking-meter revenue reserve fund for debt payments, and to treat the development as a local improvement in the downtown area if desired, with only downtown property standing behind the debt.

TO PEOPLE

"Council may decide to put it to all the people, I don't know," Mayor Percy Scurrell explained yesterday. "But we want the power to put it on an area basis."

Aldermen found few questions to ask about the plan after assistant city engineer Roderick Clack described it. Ald. M. H. Mooney was worried about possible traffic congestion at View and Blanshard, but City Engineer James Garnett assured him that "we are absolutely certain in our own minds that there's not going to be a traffic problem there."

PROHIBITIVE

Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean said the cost of an escalator in the parking building apparently would be prohibitive. But considering the large number of elderly people in Victoria, he said, this seemed to be a problem.

He was assured, however, that ramps and stairs would be "very easy" and that the design of the building would allow elevator or escalators to be installed if ever desired.

Ald. McEwen opposed approval in principle because, he said, "we have no information on financing or anything else."

LEAVE WAY OPEN

"To approve it in principle," Ald. M. H. Mooney answered, "is to say we desire off-street parking downtown, similar to this, and leave the way open to further investigation."

"We have to endorse it in principle to get at the roots of the things Ald. McEwen would like," agreed Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

Mayor's Trip

Business, Pleasure Will Mix

Mayor Percy Scurrell, leaving soon on a three-week trip to California, was authorized by council yesterday to mix a good deal of business with pleasure.

Council agreed that it would be a good idea for the mayor to confer with Sacramento traffic engineering consultant D. Jackson Faustman on Victoria's downtown improvement plan, and with Los Angeles planning consultant Gordon Whitnall on the same thing.

And then Ald. Austin Curtis suggested that the mayor should have a look at auditoriums on his trip, and Ald. M. H. Mooney added, "And new city halls."

Hospital Robbery

Detectives' Efforts Fruitless

Another fruitless day was reported yesterday by city detectives digging intently into the $7,326 safe robbery overnight Monday at St. Joseph's Hospital.

"The investigation is continuing as closely as possible," said Det. Insp. Charles Webb yesterday, "but so far the men have been unable to come up with anything concrete."

"A case of this sort, with so many possibilities, can take time," he said. "We can't neglect any possible angle."

Nature of the robbery, in which neither the office containing the safe nor the safe itself were forced, lends strength to the theory it was an "inside" job, or one done with "inside" co-operation.

This, however, was just one angle under police study, officers said.

Loot included about $3,000 in non-negotiable cheques made out to the hospital, a large quantity of cash and some jewelry belonging to patients and being held for safekeeping.

Comforted by a neighbor, Mrs. Winifred Green, 809 Selkirk, after being saved from fire by their mother who was rushed to hospital, are Debbie, 5, left; Tracy, 2; Wendy, 7 months; Mrs. Green; Dena, 3, and Ricky, 6.—(Colonist photo.)

Burned Hands, Foot

Heroic Mother Braves Fire To Rescue Her Children

A 25-year-old mother plunged into a burning room to save her five small children when their home caught fire shortly before 11 a.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Harold Poulton, 1403 Arm, suffering burns to both hands and one foot, last night was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

From her hospital bed, she described what took place:

"I was changing the baby in an upstairs bedroom. Ricky, 6, who was in an adjoining room, said there was smoke coming out of a cupboard.

"When I went in, the room was full of flames. Tracy, 2, had crawled through a two-by-two-foot hole leading into the attic, and she was trapped."

"I squeezed through the hole to her. She was huddled and screaming in the corner. There were flames all around."

"I threw all the burning material away from her, picked her up and threw her through the hole."

Mr. Poulton was at work at the time, at Heaney's.

Despite her burns, the mother herded her children downstairs where she was assisted in getting them to safety by a neighbor, Mrs. William Green, 809 Selkirk.

City firemen sped to the scene, on the city-Esquamalt border, in response to a telephone alarm at 10:52 a.m., and quickly brought the blaze under control.

Damage was confined largely to the upper floor of the house, but will total nearly $3,000 with water and smoke damage below. Mr. Poulton said later it was fully covered by insurance.

Firemen believe the blaze was caused by children playing with matches.

Mrs. Green, who cared for the Poulton children while the mother was taken to hospital, said "we had a fire ourselves a couple of years ago, so I know what a terrible thing it is."

"As soon as I saw the smoke I ran over to help. Mrs. Poulton, in spite of burned hands and foot, was running around trying to get the children organized."

"They were all in bed clothing and all crying, and she seemed in a state of shock. I just bundled coats on them and got them here to our place."

The children are Ricky, 6, and his sister Debbie, 5, Dena, 3, Tracy, 2, and Wendy, 7 months.

Boys Learning To Baby-Sit

Fifty-two junior high school students of Victoria and Esquimalt—including 12 boys—have started an unusual course at the health centre on Cook.

They are learning to be first-class baby-sitters.

The eight-week, Friday evening course has been instituted by the Victoria-Esquimalt health department in co-operation with the school board and is aimed, the health board was told at its monthly meeting, at preparing the students for baby-sitting emergencies.

Instruction is being given by police and fire department representatives and first-aid experts.

The young baby-sitters will receive cards citing their qualification, but the health department won't act as a baby-sitters' agency, Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson said yesterday.

She said the department hopes to succeed this course with others.

'Short Circuit Television' In Schools Soon—McEwen

"Short circuit television" Pending a school board-council meeting Wednesday, time, Ald. Elmer McEwen told council declined to approve an expenditure from school building program surplus for installation of television facilities at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

But Ald. McEwen said television in the schools was a coming thing—"A lot of the things taught today will be taught over TV. What they're being taught may not all be good, but they're certainly learning."

More Than Nickels and Dimes Needed to Raise $2,500,000

Nickels and dimes won't raise the $2,500,000 needed for the Victoria University fund, Tony Gargrave, MacKenzie told the legislature yesterday, and people with money to contribute should be ready to dig deep into their pockets.

When the university is established, he advocated a system of travel aid and living allowance for people living outside the lower mainland and Victoria areas to equalize the opportunity for higher education and give up-country people easier access to education facilities.

Government loans, while a help, are not a permanent solution to the problem of student assistance, he added.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: We moved to this city two months ago. Apparently our phone number used to belong to a popular restaurant. People start calling us around 4 every afternoon to make reservations and ask about the menu.

I answered four such calls yesterday. I decided to write for advice when I slipped getting out of the bathtub last night to tell some drunk there's no waitress here named "Mille."

Don't suggest a new number. My two teenage daughters like this number because it's easy to remember. They say it's hard enough for a girl to get established in a new city without adding the hazard of a changed telephone number. In the meantime I'm a wreck.—WRONG NUMBER.

Dear W.N.: Don't ask your daughters, tell them that their friends will become accustomed to the new number in time. Over a period of months this sort of annoyance could drive you batty.

Goodbye to Irving

Dear Ann: I've been in love with Irving since grade school. Although he's never shown any romantic interest in me I felt in time it would work out.

We are both 23. I've stood by him through all sorts of crushes. I even advised him on how to get certain girls interested. All the time my heart was breaking but I realized he'd have to grow up by himself and recognize that I'm the one he loves after all.

Last week he told me he's planning to marry a waitress. The girl goes to art school during the day and slings hash at night. She's dowdy and looks tired all the time. One day Irving will be an executive with a big company. This girl won't fit into his life socially.

I've never knocked any of his girl friends but I think I ought to speak up now that he's considering marriage. How shall I word it?—TRUE LOVE.

Dear True: Wake up and smell the coffee. Irving loves you—like a sister. He's not interested in letting you put your head on his shoulder. He only wants to cry on yours.

Keep your lip zipped regarding your opinion of his current romance. She sounds like a hardworking, enterprising girl who may fit into his life very well. Resign the role of Mother Confessor and concentrate on a life of your own—minus Irving.

Don't Let Her Wander

Dear Ann: I have three married daughters but my 15-year-old is giving me more trouble than all the rest put together.

My husband is a policeman. He sees so much delinquency among young kids that he won't let Elaine out after dinner. She only asks to stay out till 10 p.m. on school nights.

She's never caused us any trouble and we always know where she's going. Will you please say something on this subject?—POLICEMAN'S WIFE.

Dear Wife: You say you always know where Elaine is going, but you don't tell me. Does she roam the streets with her girl friends, hang around drug stores, visit in the homes of chums or what?

In my opinion, a 15-year-old should be at home during the week unless there's something special going on. If she has a date Friday or Saturday night you should know with whom and when to expect her home. Permitting girls to wander around aimlessly evenings is asking for trouble.

Confidential to LOOSE HANGER: Give this girl the deep six (cold, shoulder)—she's using you.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull" send for ANN LANDER'S booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Charles Concerned Over Age Difference

LONDON (Reuters)—Prince Charles thinks his mother Queen Elizabeth should have a fourth child after the birth of the third in the next few days, his friends said Wednesday.

The 11-year-old heir to the throne is concerned about the difference in ages between himself, his nine-year-old sister, Princess Anne, and the expected baby.

He was quoted as saying: "Poor baby, it will have no one to play with. Mother will have to have another."

Charles has been in bed with a severe cold for the last week at his boarding school 50 miles west of London. School officials said the prince is recovering.

Meantime, court officials were predicting the sovereign's baby would be born this weekend or early next week, possibly Monday.

The royal midwife, Sister Helen Rowe, who attended the births of Charles and Anne, is expected to move into Buckingham Palace within the next two days.

Crowds are gathering daily outside the palace gates in expectation of the royal birth.

Tips for Parents

Stimulate Interest For Child's Party

By EDITH HENRY
Mrs. Kent watched her friend shopping... sheets of red paper, a package of paper doilies, two rolls of Scotch tape, and some crinkly paper. "Whatever is going on at your house?" she asked. "We're Valentine conscious," came the answer. "We're having a pre-Valentine gathering on Saturday. Why don't you send Marly over, and come yourself if you like." "I'd simply love to," was the ready answer. "I've never been much good with children. I'd like to see how you manage them."

Saturday afternoon found Mrs. Kent watching a small and excited group of workers around the kitchen table. There were both boys and girls, some very young, some several years older. They had all begun making about the way you manage Valentine cards. Traditional Our holiday afternoons at red hearts were decorated according to the inspiration and ability of each individual artist. The next step was to make hats for the party. By this time, Mrs. Kent was interested as the children, and as full of ideas!

She worked with the older ones, tracing out large hearts to be cut and trimmed. These were laid across the top of the guests' heads and bent to tie under the chin, a la Parisienne. Meantime the younger children were decorating red place mats. Tidying up the room and themselves followed, then a brisk game and everyone was ready for hats, place mats, sandwiches, cake and ice cream.

"Thank you, my dear. I don't know when I've had such a good time," was Mrs. Kent's parting remark. "And I've learned something about the way you manage Valentine cards. Traditional Our holiday afternoons at red hearts were decorated according to the inspiration and Valentine party pie looks almost too pretty to eat, but there is always consolation in the fact that it can be made again and again with very little effort on the part of the cook. A swirly border of whipped cream acts as a frame for this delectable dessert.

What's Cooking!

Party Pie Good For Special Day

What's cooking? Many women like to have a tea party on St. Valentine's Day. A Valentine party pie would carry out the theme of the day.

VALENTINE PARTY PIE

(Yield—8 to 10 servings)

Half a teaspoon vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon water, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites (at room temperature), 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 cup fruit or fine granulated sugar, red food coloring, 1 package (approx. 3 1/2 ounces) strawberry-flavored instant pudding mix, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1/2 pint (1 1/2 cups) whipping cream.

Cover a cookie sheet with a piece of heavy paper. Draw a heart-shape on the paper about 8 inches across and 9 inches long. Preheat oven to 275° F. (rather slow.)

Combine vinegar, water and vanilla. Sprinkle egg whites with salt and baking powder; beat with hand rotary-beater or electric mixer set at a high speed until egg whites are stiff but not dry. Very gradually beat in the sugar alternately with vinegar mixture. Tint delicately with red food coloring. Spread a 1/4-inch-thick layer of meringue over surface of heart marked on paper. Pipe or spoon a high border of meringue around edge of heart. Bake in preheated oven until shell is set and dry—about 1 hour. Turn off oven heat, open door and allow the shell to cool in the oven. About 2 hours before serving time, make up instant pudding mix as directed on package, using the 1 1/2 cups milk as liquid; stir in lemon rind. Let stand 5 minutes. Meantime, beat cream until stiff. Fold about 1 cup of the whipped cream into pudding; turn into heart shell.

MAYNARD'S AUCTION

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Finding a second and equally good chance to win a bridge hand is like finding a philanthropist willing to let you toss a coin in the air twice and pay off if you call it correctly either time. What seems like a 2-to-1 proposition is even better than that; given two equal chances, the odds against losing both are 3-to-1! That's a pretty good inducement to look for the second finesse that would let you win your small slam in today's deal. Put yourself in South's chair and cover the East-West hands.

North was able to bid three diamonds because this partnership plays the double raise, even in a minor, as absolutely forcing. Otherwise, North would have to respond two no-trump — the bid so often and so justly called the "slam-killer." But in that case, if North-South failed to reach the slam, the blame could justly be laid upon South's opening bid of one diamond, rather than the superior choice of one no-trump.

Declarer won the first heart trick in his hand. He had no chance to evade losing a club, and the slam apparently hinged upon a successful spade finesse. But South managed to play so that he got a chance to win two finessses!

After drawing trumps, declarer cashed the two top clubs and the heart ace. Then he led dummy's last club. East could see that winning the trick would be suicide, so he made a desperation duck, and West won with the jack. To avoid giving declarer a ruff-suff, West had to lead spades. Declarer ducked in dummy, giving himself the extra finesse in the suit — against the 10 spot. If East could force the ace by playing the 10, there was still time to take a finesse against West for the queen. But East didn't have the 10, and whether he played his queen or his seven, South was bound to make all three spade tricks, and the slam.

Stiff Fines, Prison Terms Urged as Curb to Payola

WASHINGTON (AP)—Stiff payola and fixed quiz shows, fines and prison terms were recommended by the federal communications commission Thursday as a deterrent to payola and fixed quiz shows.

The commission proposed that Congress provide for communications commission fines of up to $5,000 and imprisonment for up to one year for deceptive practices in broadcasting.

It said in a statement that this would enable it to punish any glib networks, advertisers, show producers and disc jockeys. All of these, it said, are now beyond its reach.

The commission contended its present authority extends only to individual radio and TV stations. It thus took issue in effect with a report to the White House by Attorney-General William P. Rogers who said the commission had adequate authority under existing law to deal with deceptive practices on the air.

The House of Representatives legislative oversight subcommittee, which is investigating payola or the practice of making concealed payments for plugging records on the air, has recessed its inquiry until next Monday.

In its statement the communications commission said it felt the criminal penalties it proposed would "help to assure that every contest of intellectual skill or knowledge that is broadcast will be, in fact, bona fide."

NOW SHOWING "Witness for the Prosecution"
Everyone is talking about this film. It has been in first demand since its first showing. Please do not miss the sensational "sensational" results, it was learned last night.
Four houses have been offered to Gordon Arthur Jackson, his wife and their four small children, who lost everything when flames gutted their home at 1256 Goldstream Tuesday.
Douglas Price of the Langford and District Lions Club, sponsoring a collection of furniture and bedding for the family, said: "With a few exceptions, we've enough in sight now to set them right up again."
Gifts included beds, cots, couches, ranges, a heater, pots and pans, bedding, a kitchen chrome set, tables and chairs, an armchair, food and cash.
"We still need dishes, cutlery, more sheets and some pillows. With those, we'll be able to put the Jacksons into a house probably by Saturday," he said.
Telephone number for those wishing to make donations is GR 8-3515.
Collecting clothing donations for the family was the Dorcas Society of the Seventh Day Adventists Church.
Mrs. David Welch, president of the society, said: "The people of Victoria have been wonderful again, making it possible for us to help this family."

Ike's Test-Ban Plan Rejected by Russia

WASHINGTON (CP)—East-West negotiations to ban testing of atomic weapons headed towards failure Thursday as President Eisenhower unveiled a new proposal which was immediately rejected by Russia.

U.S. authorities said if Russia maintains its rejection, then "we have just about exhausted all immediate possibilities."

Britain came out fully in support of the U.S. plan.

The Eisenhower proposal calls for a controlled ban on tests above the ground, in space and in oceans. It does not include small underground tests difficult to detect with present instruments.

Eisenhower invited Russia to join in research and development to improve detection instruments.

Moscow radio said President Eisenhower's proposal really means "freedom of action" in resuming tests.

The broadcast said the proposal shows the U.S. "is prepared to go to any length to thwart a treaty prohibiting all kinds of nuclear tests."

In Paris, informed French sources said the proposal would not change President de Gaulle's decision to explode a French atom bomb.

Family Offered Four Houses

Plight of a burned-out Langford family, as outlined in the Colonist yesterday, brought "sensational" results, it was learned last night.

Four houses have been offered to Gordon Arthur Jackson, his wife and their four small children, who lost everything when flames gutted their home at 1256 Goldstream Tuesday.

Canada's Disarmament Policy:

Space Peace First

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Thursday a basic requirement of Canadian disarmament policy is an international declaration banning use of outer space for other than peaceful purposes and a ban on nuclear-armed satellites.

He listed in the Commons foreign affairs debate seven basic points of Canada's disarmament policy, stating the question of outer space transcends all others.

His other points:
1. Maximum disarmament that can be controlled without endangering national security.
2. Priority in disarming to control of nuclear-carrying missiles.
3. Agreement for designating missile sites.
4. Banning of biological and chemical warfare.
5. Cessation of production of fissionable material and conversion of stocks of fissionable material to peaceful purposes.
6. An international military force to restrain aggression.
He suggested two initial steps which might be taken by nations genuinely wanting disarmament:
1. Acceptance of the jurisdiction of the international court of justice.
2. A declaration that no part of outer space or any celestial body be subject to the jurisdiction of any one nation.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he agrees with opposition spokesmen that political questions should not be tied to a disarmament agreement. Nations ultimately will bring about should take steps to end complete disarmament.

U.S. Sends Argentina Weapons to Hit Sub

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Navy said yesterday it is sending depth charges and electronic equipment to help Argentina attack an unidentified object believed to be a foreign submarine.

The material was being flown to Argentina and was expected to arrive this weekend. "No U.S. ships, aircraft, or personnel will be operating with the Argentine navy," the announcement said.

Argentina is now equipped with depth charges that will not reach the ocean floor where the sub is lying.

'Goodbye Salmon'

Fraser Diversion End of Columbia?

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has jeopardized U.S.-Canada agreement on power sharing on the Columbia River through its continued threat to divert its waters into the Fraser River, Senator Thomas Reid said Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Green has said repeatedly that in any joint agreement, "we will reserve the power to divert the water from the Columbia," the senator said.

"That might well be used as one of the arguments for American interests not to reach a final agreement."

Senator Reid, chairman of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said any diversion of Columbia water to the Fraser would mean "goodbye salmon" and the end of a $50,000,000 yearly business for his province.

Power Parley Begins

OTTAWA (UPI)—First round of Canada-U.S. negotiations for co-operative development of the vast water resources of the Columbia River system began Thursday.

The talks lasted more than five hours. Another session is scheduled today and no statement will be made until it ends.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)

An unconfirmed press report said a mystery submarine, hunted by the Argentine navy for 12 days, surfaced in Argentine waters Thursday and was attacked by warships and naval aircraft.

This was the latest story in a bizarre naval operation that has prompted wild speculation as well as serious political questions on what the submarine—if it is a submarine—is doing in Argentine waters.

STILL PURSUING

All that the navy would say is that it still is pursuing the submarine believed trapped in Golfo Nuevo, a 20 by 40 square mile body of water separated from the Atlantic by a narrow entrance.

The Argentine news agency Telam said its correspondent at Puerto Madryn was told of the surface battle by unofficial sources. He added that the situation was "extremely confused."

The newspaper Democracia said the submarine tried to run the blockade across the mouth of the gulf Wednesday night but was driven back by depth charges. Ships, Coast Guard fighters, a flying boat and helicopters participated in the action, the paper said.

MOST JEALOUS

Argentina is among the world's most jealous nations in matters of sovereignty.

If the navy should capture a submarine, whatever country it belongs to will be in for a difficult time not only with Argentina but most of Latin America. Diplomatic relations have been broken for far smaller affronts.

If there is a submarine and it turns out to be Russian, the current Soviet trade and friendship offensive probably would be set back for years as far as Latin America is concerned.

President Arturo Frondizi instructed his foreign office to be prepared for immediate rupture of relations with any country to which the suspected submarine belonged.

A government source said the submarine could be from Russia, Poland, East Germany, or Communist China.

Speaks Today

Bennett Back With Budget

Premier Bennett has had the good word from his doctors and expects to be on hand at 3 p.m. today to deliver his budget address to the legislature.

All reserved seats in the legislative galleries have been taken and it is expected there will be a line-up for the 125 seats in the public galleries.

The speech, which is expected to provide benefits for nearly everybody in British Columbia, will take about 1½ hours to read.

The premier, who has been convalescing after major surgery for a kidney ailment, expects to read the entire speech himself.

Disarmament Parley

Must Have China Pearson Contends

OTTAWA (UPI)—The absence of Communist China from the forthcoming 10-nation disarmament committee may prevent it from working out an effective disarmament agreement, Opposition leader Lester Pearson warned last night.

Pearson, who emphasized that he did not believe Red China should be given a United Nations seat or recognized diplomatically, said it would be difficult to reach an agreement "which will mean something," unless the Red regime was in the negotiations from the beginning.

"To be effective, disarmament must include the Red Chinese army in some form or another," Pearson told the Commons during the external affairs debate.

Kidnap Suspects Hunted

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—Sheriff Art Wermuth said here last night he was searching for three suspects in the probable kidnapping of millionaire brewer Adolph Coors III.

One, he said, was believed to be in the Denver metropolitan area and the other two "are southeast of here."

He reaffirmed that no effort has been made to contact the Coors family for ransom.

Dental Technician Takes Case to Top

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP)—The battle of a Drumheller dental technician versus a Drumheller dentist will go before the Supreme Court of Canada in Ottawa later this month with the outcome to affect all those connected to both professions in Western Canada. The case concerns technician S. G. Vail and dentist Dr. Ron Dixon.

The case has gone through magistrate's court, district court and the Alberta Supreme Court. Mr. Vail won in both the magistrate's and district courts but Chief Justice C. J. Ford ruled that Mr. Vail unlawfully practised dentistry when he fitted a patient for a set of false teeth.

The magistrate's and district courts ruled that no law was broken, as Mr. Vail did not charge for fitting the patient, only for the actual making of the dental plates.

'Copters for Hire If Trains Stuck

LONDON (UPI)—A car-rental firm plans to use helicopters and motor launches to get businessmen to work if railroadmen go on strike.

The company will hire helicopters to fly residents from outer suburbs into the Battersea helicopter station; then take them by motorboat up the Thames to work.

Charges for a group of four will be only slightly more than rent for a chauffeur-driven limousine.

Paar Walks Out in Mid-Show, Let Down by NBC, He Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Comedian Jack Paar, feuding with NBC because he was cut off the air Wednesday night during an anecdote, quit the show in a huff Thursday night. It was an emotional farewell.

There were groans from the audience and shouts of "Oh, no," as the television star announced his exit from the show.

"I believe I was let down by this network at a time when I could have used their help," Paar said.

AUDIENCE APPLAUDS

He shook hands with Hugh Downs, the show's regular announcer, then rushed off stage.

The audience broke into applause. NBC immediately issued a statement expressing the hope he would cool off and ultimately reconsider his abrupt decision.

There was doubt at that time whether the taped show would be broadcast. But NBC decided to broadcast it exactly as taped, including Paar's almost tearful farewell.

with the letters "W.C." widely used in Europe as an abbreviation for water closet, and the ensuing confusion when someone understood them to mean wayside chapel.

A network official said NBC's department of standards and practices felt the story was in bad taste.

Paar called it "very innocent." Stranded for the moment in the confusion were three well-known guest stars—Genevieve, the French singer and actress; Orson Bean, actor and comedian, and comedian Shelly Berman.

CENSOR AN 'IDIOT'

Announcer Hugh Downs took over later as master of ceremonies of the coast-to-coast show and the taping was continued.

Some broadcasting officials expressed the belief that Paar would cool off during the weekend and return to the show next week.

Paar had been in an angry mood all day over the censoring of the anecdote Wednesday night and denounced as "an idiot" the unnamed NBC official who ordered him cut off the air.

Esquimalt House Pockmarked

Force of the blast left the front of the house at 836 Dunsuir pockmarked with rock, chipped the fireplace, damaged the floor and the television set and left the room filled with rocks the size of coconuts. But Harvey McGee was counting his blessings, nonetheless.

IN FRONT WINDOW

"My boy Robbie was sitting directly in front of the window watching television not five minutes before it happened," he said last night. "If he had been there at the time, no telling what might have happened."

The blast occurred on the opposite side of Dunsuir Road, where workmen have been clearing rock to widen the street. But a fault in the rock turned a routine explosion into one that sent a hail of rock speeding across the street.

NO NEGLIGENCE

Mr. McGee, who is satisfied that there was no negligence on anyone's part that led to the accident, was surveying the damage last night.

Rocks had been driven through the window with such force that they went the length of the living room into the room beyond. Carpets have to be sent out to be cleared of shattered glass, and there were several dents in the hardwood floor.

SHORT CIRCUIT

The television set that Robbie had been watching had a piece knocked out of its cabinet. Somehow the explosion caused a short-circuit, which turned on the record-player of the combination set.

Robbie, too young to realize how narrowly he had escaped what might have been a serious accident, was concerned with only one thing last night.

"They have to take the TV set away," he explained gravely, and left no doubt that this was a serious problem indeed.

Dental Technician Takes Case to Top

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP)—The battle of a Drumheller dental technician versus a Drumheller dentist will go before the Supreme Court of Canada in Ottawa later this month with the outcome to affect all those connected to both professions in Western Canada. The case concerns technician S. G. Vail and dentist Dr. Ron Dixon.

The case has gone through magistrate's court, district court and the Alberta Supreme Court. Mr. Vail won in both the magistrate's and district courts but Chief Justice C. J. Ford ruled that Mr. Vail unlawfully practised dentistry when he fitted a patient for a set of false teeth.

The magistrate's and district courts ruled that no law was broken, as Mr. Vail did not charge for fitting the patient, only for the actual making of the dental plates.

Paar Walks Out in Mid-Show, Let Down by NBC, He Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Comedian Jack Paar, feuding with NBC because he was cut off the air Wednesday night during an anecdote, quit the show in a huff Thursday night. It was an emotional farewell.

There were groans from the audience and shouts of "Oh, no," as the television star announced his exit from the show.

"I believe I was let down by this network at a time when I could have used their help," Paar said.

AUDIENCE APPLAUDS

He shook hands with Hugh Downs, the show's regular announcer, then rushed off stage.

The audience broke into applause. NBC immediately issued a statement expressing the hope he would cool off and ultimately reconsider his abrupt decision.

There was doubt at that time whether the taped show would be broadcast. But NBC decided to broadcast it exactly as taped, including Paar's almost tearful farewell.

The scrap between the comedian and the network centred around an anecdote dealing with the letters "W.C." widely used in Europe as an abbreviation for water closet, and the ensuing confusion when someone understood them to mean wayside chapel.

A network official said NBC's department of standards and practices felt the story was in bad taste.

Paar called it "very innocent."

Stranded for the moment in the confusion were three well-known guest stars—Genevieve, the French singer and actress; Orson Bean, actor and comedian, and comedian Shelly Berman.

CENSOR AN 'IDIOT'

Announcer Hugh Downs took over later as master of ceremonies of the coast-to-coast show and the taping was continued.

Some broadcasting officials expressed the belief that Paar would cool off during the weekend and return to the show next week. Paar had been in an angry mood all day over the censoring of the anecdote Wednesday night and denounced as "an idiot" the unnamed NBC official who ordered him cut off the air.

Esquimalt House Pockmarked

Force of the blast left the front of the house at 836 Dunsuir pockmarked with rock, chipped the fireplace, damaged the floor and the television set and left the room filled with rocks the size of coconuts. But Harvey McGee was counting his blessings, nonetheless.

IN FRONT WINDOW

"My boy Robbie was sitting directly in front of the window watching television not five minutes before it happened," he said last night. "If he had been there at the time, no telling what might have happened."

The blast occurred on the opposite side of Dunsuir Road, where workmen have been clearing rock to widen the street. But a fault in the rock turned a routine explosion into one that sent a hail of rock speeding across the street.

NO NEGLIGENCE

Mr. McGee, who is satisfied that there was no negligence on anyone's part that led to the accident, was surveying the damage last night.

Rocks had been driven through the window with such force that they went the length of the living room into the room beyond. Carpets have to be sent out to be cleared of shattered glass, and there were several dents in the hardwood floor.

SHORT CIRCUIT

The television set that Robbie had been watching had a piece knocked out of its cabinet. Somehow the explosion caused a short-circuit, which turned on the record-player of the combination set.

Robbie, too young to realize how narrowly he had escaped what might have been a serious accident, was concerned with only one thing last night.

"They have to take the TV set away," he explained gravely, and left no doubt that this was a serious problem indeed.

Longden Thrown, Not Hurt

Jockey Johnny Longden, 53, is riding hard and still winning at Santa Anita, Calif. But he gave his fans a scare Thursday afternoon while aboard three-year-old filly Curragh Queen when she fell as the eight-horse field reached the far turn in a six-furlong race.

The crowd of 19,000 was hushed at the sight, Longden, who had the wind knocked out of him, was rushed to the track hospital by ambulance but left later under his own power.

Longden, who has been riding for 23 years, has 5,403 victories—tops of any jockey.

Glen Harper's Duncan Rink Only Islanders Still 'Alive'

By JIM TANG
Colonist Sports Editor
KELOWNA—All Vancouver Island rinks with the exception of zone champion Glen Harper of Duncan were eliminated from the B.C. bonspiel on Thursday.

Victoria's Tony Gutoski, who started yesterday's play leading in the grand aggregate race with a 7-0 record and rated an excellent chance of qualifying for the provincial final, lost two tough games to drop out of everything and wind up with only four pairs of binoculars.

In a morning game Gutoski was beaten 8-6 by red-hot Van-

Longhurst Retires

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eric Longhurst resigned as a soccer referee this week after 13 years' service.

Longhurst, who officiated at every exhibition game with a touring British side since 1949, gave no reason for his resignation from the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Last year he was appointed to the Federation Internationale De Football Associations list, only the third British Columbia official to be so honored by the world-wide soccer body.

couver rink skipped by Lyall Dagg, which evened the score after losing to Gutoski Wednesday evening in being knocked out of the unbeaten class.

It was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way with Dagg, who has been curling brilliantly himself, having a slight edge. Dagg took a 7-6 lead into the home end and counted one when Gutoski, playing for the win rather than the tie and an extra end, just missed a double takeout.

Harper then made certain he wouldn't have to face his old nemesis in Consols play-down by taking Gutoski out 5-4 in the semi-finals of "B" primary.

It was another in the series of close ones for the Victoria rink with the game perhaps being lost on the sixth end. It was tied at two-all when Gutoski slipped a foot too far into the back ring with his last shot and left Harper laying two for a 4-2 bulge.

Gutoski blanked the seventh end and the strategy paid off when he got two back on the eighth for a 4-4 tie but the one-rock edge had been lost and Harper was able to blank the ninth end. On the tenth, Gutoski had to make a perfect freeze on shot rock in the four-foot ring to try and save the end. The rock came to rest alongside only an inch from being shot and Harper didn't have to throw his last rock.

TAYLOR THROUGH

Gar Taylor of Victoria was eliminated on a morning draw losing to Reg Stone of Trail in the eighth of a primary, 9-6. Harry Stizaker of Port Alberni also went out in the eighth, losing to Herb Lemke of Summerland 10-9 in the eighth of B primary after overcoming a 7-2 deficit to tie it up on the ninth.

Gene Koster's Nanaimo rink which started the day alive in the two tertiary events lost first to Bill Carse of Penticton and then to Fritz Farenholtz of Nelson to go home empty-handed. As things turned out, Stone and Dagg went on to qualify for the B.C. finals joining the 10 zone champions in the double event knockout play which starts today with two draws.

Dagg carried on after beating Gutoski by trimming Ray Ottem of Kamloops 10-4 in the semi-finals of B primary, Ottem conceding before the eighth end was completed.

After defeating Taylor, Stone took an extra-end win from Lloyd Neff's Vancouver rink skipped by Earl Ewart, to get another chance to win his seventh provincial title and his sixth chance to play in the Dominion playdowns at Fort William next month.

Both Stone and Dagg have to be conceded a fair chance of carrying on to win the Consols title. The Trail veteran still is a tough man to beat and his rink came on steadily and is currently curling in top form. Dagg has a steady crew and was good enough himself to rate with Gutoski as the 'spiel's outstanding shotmaker. Dagg currently is leading in the grand aggregate with an 8-1 record and will win the top bonspiel honor if he can best Stone in the A primary final. Harper stands at 7-1 and meets Roy Vinthers in the B event final.

Draw for the Consols play-downs was made late Thursday. In A event it's Dick Topping of Summerland vs. Vinthers of Vancouver; Al Engstrom of Prince George vs. Joe McKinnon of Kamloops; Harper vs. Joe Mitchell of Prince Rupert; Eric Bisgrove of Kimberley vs. Herb Taylor of Whitehorse in the extra series. And it's Dean Hayes of Haney vs. Mickey Brennan of Trail and Dagg vs. Stone in the eighth.

In B Consols event the draw in order is: Hayes vs. McKinnon; Mitchell vs. Dagg; Brennan vs. Bisgrove; Vinthers vs. Stone; Engstrom vs. Harper and Taylor vs. Topping.

New Golf Course Needed in Hurry

Chairman Harry Young urged reviving previous plans for a new course at Elk and Beaver Lakes during the annual Victoria and District Golf Committee meeting held Thursday night.

"This year has seen an overall growth in the number of active golfers in the district, and at least two of the clubs are at the limit of their membership. It seems reasonable that in five or 10 years there will be a shortage of golfing facilities in Victoria, just as there is in Vancouver today," said Young.

"On these grounds I suggest the committee should offer to act in an advisory capacity to any public body that is interested in creating new golfing facilities in the district."

"I have in mind the interest of the Saanich reeve in reviving the old plans for a golf course at Elk Lake and Beaver Lake. A course open to the public at this site might be a valuable asset to golf in this district within the next few years," said Young.

Young added that over 200 boys enrolled for the district's golf tuition course last spring and many of them have either joined clubs or are playing on local courses.

A financial report issued at the meeting showed all competitions except the Centennial Foursome showed a modest profit.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Meanwhile, VDCG officers were elected at the Thursday meeting.

Young, Colonist financial editor and golf columnist, was unanimously returned as chairman for a third term. Vice-chairman is Sid Holland of Gorge Vale. Secretary-treasurer is Leo Derman of Gorge. M. Barkow of Colwood and R. A. Robison of Victoria Golf Club were named inter-league committee members.

Ken Lawson of Uplands is chairman of the junior development program and convener of winter medal competition.

Frank Scroggs of Uplands is convener of button competition.

TOURNEY DATES

Dates were also decided for major competitions in 1960. Island Open qualifying-round play will begin March 27 at Colwood. Other dates are April 3, 10, 17, 24 and May 1. Final will be held at Gorge Vale.

City championship, a 54-hole competition, will be held June 5 and 12 at Uplands, while the Zone I tournament goes June 19 at Victoria Golf Club.

Matson Trophy competition will be held Sept. 11 at Colwood.

England's Bowlers Subdue Jamaicans

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—England's MCC cricket team took Jamaica's seven remaining first innings wickets for 137 runs on the second day of their match here Thursday and at the close were 257 runs behind with eight wickets in hand.

Freddie Trueman's pace-bowling and the leg-spinners of Ken Barrington and Tom Greenough found cheap victims when Jamaica resumed at their overnight score of 237 for three. Jamaica was all out for 374. MCC was 117 for two in reply at the end of the day.

Only Reg Scarlett stood firm for Jamaica Thursday, scoring 72 not out in an hour and 44 minutes, with 11 fours. It was the first time he had reached the half-century in his first-class career.

Trueman, Barrington and Greenough each took two wickets. Trueman finished with the innings figures, four for 54.

NANAIMO (CP)—The Vancouver Island Golden Gloves boxing tournament, scheduled to open here Saturday night, has attracted a starry entry list.

Champion fighters from Army, Navy, Esquimalt, Duncan, Port Alberni and Chemainus boxing clubs have filed entries.

Interest centres in the light-heavyweight division contested by Danny Daniels of Ladysmith Boxing Club, recent winner of the Buckskin Gloves 165-pound title in Vancouver. Daniels is undefeated in his short fight career of four bouts. All victories have been by knockouts.

Army's light-heavyweight, Pie Emerson Manspacher, has been entered along with four other Canadian army champions.

The heavyweight division includes Charley Reekie, navy boxer and former eastern command champion.

Manitoba Picks Curling Champs

First provincial curling championship rink was named in Winnipeg last night when

Mac Scales of Winnipeg Granite won 10-9 over Billy Walsh of Winnipeg Fort Rouge.

Victory gave Scales a record of 24 victories out of 25 games in the Manitoba Curling Association bonspiel and the right to represent his province at the Brier in Fort William March 7-11.

Moving west, the 1959 Canadian champions, skipped by Ernie Richardson of Regina, gained the Saskatchewan final against Glen Richardson of Saskatoon (no relation). They play off at the weekend.

Opening round of the Alberta playoff starts today in Lethbridge. Entered are Matt Baldwin, Edmonton; Stu Beagle of Calgary; Barry Lowe of Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Lloyd Larson of Seasmith.

Bruins' win gave them 50 points in 34 games and a tie for the final NHL playoff position with Chicago. The latter club has played 55 games.

Other Boston goals were scored by John Bucyk and Guy Gendron who scored his 20th of the season. Rookie Murray Oliver assisted both Detroit goals, giving him 15 for the season.

Bucyk and Oliver matched first-period goals before Gendron scored what appeared to be the winner at 14:13 of the final. Gendron deflected a shot by Charlie Burns past Riggins.

Armstrong then scored his goal at 18:49 but Detroit battled back with Oliver connecting again with a minute remaining.

Detroit yanked Riggins in the final minute but could not beat veteran Boston goalie Harry Lumley.

Lumley had 32 stops during the game, 12 in the final period as Detroit outshot Boston 13-5. Riggins had 22 saves.

Riggins was playing his fourth game as a replacement for Terry Sawchuk, the regular Detroit goalie who is receiving a rest from constant pressure this season.

McKechnie Cup Saturday

Crimson Tide Ready

Crimson Tide of Victoria hope to end Vancouver Reps' three-year domination on the McKechnie Cup when the rugby rivals tangle Saturday at 3 p.m. at Macdonald Park.

Coach Alex MacDonald is confident his select Victoria team can win the inter-city title and feels his lineup for Saturday's game is as strong as possible.

Victoria has only one newcomer to McKechnie Cup play in the person lock forward Gray Eaton of Victoria University.

A combination of the visitors that could cause trouble is Danny Oliver and Ted Hunt, scrum-half and stand-off respectively.

Two other standouts for the Vancouver team are speedy John Newton and George Pail at the wing positions.

A preliminary game between UBC's Cadets and Oak Bay Wanderers will be held at 1:45 p.m. Saturday.

Fullback, Don Burgess (OB); wings, Bob Hutchinson (OB), Charlie Bishop (JB); inside centre, Gordie Hemmingway (JB); outside centre,

Jack Patrick (JB); stand-off half, Ray Calton (OB); scrum-half, Bob Dawson (JB); hooker, Lynn Patterson (OB); props, Adam Ustik (JB); Sonny Vickery (JB), lock forwards, Gray Eaton (VU), Chris Pollard (OB); wing forwards, Bob Moore (OB), Bill Murray (OB); five-eights, Peter Clarke (OB).

Remaining two players to be named.

Alan Morton Joins UBC

VANCOUVER (CP)—Australian winger Alan Morton, named one of the world's top five rugby players in 1959, will play with the University of British Columbia next season.

Morton and fellow Australian Gordon Treble will enroll at UBC next September. Treble has been rated one of Australia's best breakaways.

Both will major in physical education and both will be here for at least two seasons and likely three.

Morton, 23, played in Vancouver in 1958 with the touring Wallabies team.

Alumni lists—the first complete ones ever compiled here—are being made up for use in the $2,500,000 building fund drive for Victoria University.

ALUMNI GROUP

But it is hoped they ultimately will result in formation of the first Victoria University alumni association.

R. H. Roy, head of the Victoria branch of UBC Alumni Association, is chairman of the committee that has taken on the job of tracking down graduates scattered throughout the country and overseas.

Twin headaches facing the group: many male graduates have moved away while most of the girls married and now bear names unknown to their alma mater.

Some of the names are available, from college records, but a thorough job of compiling a complete list of alumni has never been attempted until now.

The committee has asked parents or friends of graduates who have moved away to get in touch with the university fund drive office with the present whereabouts of alumni.

OTHER MEMBERS

Finch Faces Death Scene

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch was confronted yesterday with a secret tape recording which the prosecution said showed he made up the whole tearful, death-side scene with his wife.

The surgeon, his voice unshaken and sincere, denied it emphatically and said the truth was the only weapon he had to save himself and, perhaps, his mistress, Carole Tregoff.

Finch said he still would marry the 23-year-old redhead if he is freed and "if Carole will have me."

The cross-examination of the 42-year-old doctor reached a smashing climax when prosecutor Fred N. Whichello produced the surprising recording of remarks Finch made to police in Las Vegas on July 20.

Mrs. Barbara Finch was killed outside her home July 18.

The recording, made without Finch's knowledge, showed that he told police he didn't know his wife was dead until he had driven from their West Covina, Calif., home and arrived in Las Vegas.

Finch had told the jury he knelt by his wife, heard her last forgiving words and did not leave her until he examined her and found her dead after an accidental shooting.

"I suggest you made up the whole touching death-bed scene you have told here," Whichello said.

"That is not true," Finch said. "That is absolutely false, every single word of it."

Prosecutor Fred N. Whichello accused Dr. Finch of leaving his wife "like a dead animal on the lawn" instead of carrying her body into their home.

The 42-year-old surgeon paled under the words but his composure did not break nor did he display anger.

The prosecutor made a brief reference to the last words Barbara Jean Finch was said to have whispered to her husband before she died. Finch said she told him she was sorry and "Take care of the kids."

"Is there any reason you couldn't have picked your wife up and carried her into one of the houses (Finch's or his father's) instead of leaving her like a dead animal on the lawn, Dr. Finch?" asked Whichello.

Finch sat stunned for a moment. The courtroom at his murder trial with Carole Tregoff was hushed.

Then he mumbled:

"I don't know."

Big Project Starting

1,600 Set to Leave Vancouver Slums

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sixteen hundred people will be moved and their blighted homes destroyed in the first step of Vancouver's 20-year plan to clear out its slums.

City council learned yesterday the homes affected in the opening stage are in the city's immediate east end and surrounding Industrial False Creek.

Low-rent public housing will be built to provide homes for the people displaced in the giant wrecking project.

Cost of acquiring the land and clearing it will be almost $4,000,000—the cost to be shared by the three levels of government.

Total cost for the 20-year project may reach $75,000,000. The new houses will be built before the old homes come down.

Later plans include skyscraper-type apartment blocks, row houses and shopping centres.

BASKING BUSTER AND MRS. LIND

Butch a Homebody Even Though Free

Adopted Seal a Pet but Not Captive

QUATSINO—A hair seal, by nature a predator with a bounty on his nose, has become a lovable, loyal, playful and entertaining new resident of this isolated community at the north-western tip of Vancouver Island.

Buster, orphaned by a bounty-hunter's rifle, was "adopted" as an infant by the A. R. Lind family. Nursed and pampered to grown sealhood, he shows no inclination of defecting to his brethren although he's as free as any of them.

Buster flippers out to sea for hours on end, visits other beaches when people on shore call him in, romps with children and dogs in the water. He's just as happy sleeping in the house, under the house or next to the lapping tides.

ONLY HOLD

"Our only hold on him," says Mrs. Lind, "is the fact that he enjoys our company, and we certainly enjoy his."

Buster was brought to Quatsino at the tender age of one day by an Indian boy who asked Mrs. Lind if she would like to have it.

and was as good as an alarm clock," says Mrs. Lind.

As Buster stretched longer and longer and his hair disappeared, he developed two problems: he had no urge to take a dip in the briny and turned his nose up at sea food offerings.

"He seemed to hate the water. I had to wade out and take him with me," says Mrs. Lind. "And he would only stay as long as I was there with him."

ENJOYED PLUNGES

"Then nature asserted itself and he began to swim alone—but for only short periods." He started to enjoy his plunges after children splashed in the sea with him.

Eventually, he would stay in all day, coming out only when he was hungry.

Curious of everything moving on land or sea, Buster soon became the object of curious residents from all parts of the sound. They came from far and wide to take pictures of him and watch him play.

BROKE HEART

Mrs. Lind said it "broke her heart" when the family had to go to Vancouver for a time because "the little fellow was not able to rustle for himself at that time."

She "boarded" him out with some friends half a mile away, along with his milk bottle, milk and oatmeal.

"The first night he got away and swam back home. Our friends collected him and put him in a large box but he escaped again, injuring his flipper in the struggle." He was gone a week but was spotted on a beach by an Indian who returned him to Quatsino the day the Linds returned from Vancouver.

He was in poor shape, hardly able to move. "I started all over again with the milk bottle and he took to it right off. From this I feel he must have been pining for me."

For a month, she massaged his injured flipper and "shoulder," took him for exercising ambles on the beach to bring him back to health.

He has answered the call of the sea on a number of occasions, one time he was off on a three-week tour, but he has always returned.

FIRM SEAL

Buster now weighs about 150 pounds and is four feet long—a round, firm young seal.

"Ashore he is happiest when he can follow me around," says Mrs. Lind. "He loves to be in the house with us. Knocks on the door with his flippers to be let in, and is quite insistent."

"In play he will grab my legs, and even take one in his mouth. His teeth are very sharp, but they have never been used on us."

FEEL LOSS

Quatsino, and especially the children and the Linds, will feel a loss if Buster ever decides humans don't quite measure up to other hair seals. But up to now, Buster considers the Linds "his people."

No Longer Isolated West Coast Booms

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

On a visit to Ucluelet and Tofino a few days ago I found evidence on all sides that progress follows improved transportation facilities, and that the people who live there no longer have that feeling of isolation.

Until last September they were entirely dependent on boat and air transportation. Now the new Alberni-Tofino road enables them to come and go as they please.

Both settlements are organized village municipalities with a combined population of about 1,500. Under the chairmanship of James Forbes, the Ucluelet commission has many local improvement projects in hand, principally opening up new streets and improving those which already exist.

Recently completed is a road to Spring Cove, just inside the harbor mouth, where most of the fishing boats tie up. Another is gradually being extended towards Port Albion on the opposite side of the harbor, where Canadian Fishing and Packing Company has a reduction plant. Ucluelet's chief industries are fishing and logging.

Train Drags Car

NANAIMO—A car driven by F. E. Carswell was carried nearly 300 feet down the rail road tracks by a huge E & N freight locomotive yesterday afternoon.

The collision between car and train occurred at the town site crossing.

Carswell and his passenger, Charles Osborne, were uninjured but the car was badly damaged.

George Nicholson is a longtime resident of Vancouver Island's west coast and a recognized authority on the region.

Inducement to new business enterprises. Latest is the opening of a second six-suite modern apartment block, and a $26,000 co-operative general store.

In the "West Coast," published weekly by George and Mae Simpson, Ucluelet has its own newspaper, and many homes have coaxial cable TV. A recreation commission, road and gun club, well-baby clinic, government liquor store, Army, Navy and Air Force veterans' association, and a beauty parlor are among the community's other amenities.

Work is to start immediately on enlarging Ucluelet's wharf and floats, at a cost of $28,900. Contractor Tom Gibson of Tofino recently re-decked the Tofino wharf and is currently building new government floats at Ahousat, 15 miles farther up-coast.

Tofino Bursting

"Bursting at the seams," the Tofino municipality recently extended its boundaries to take in an additional 194 acres. Under the chairmanship of William Sharp, the local baker, its current projects include road improvements and re-vamping the town's water supply system. President of the Tofino chamber of commerce is George Pownall. Robert Douglass heads the Canadian Legion.

Building of a breakwater and fishboat basin, estimated to cost $200,000, is the biggest project currently being undertaken on the Tofino waterfront. Dredging has been completed and a contractor is building the floats and approach.

Ply Pontoons

In this connection, an interesting experiment is being carried out by the federal department of public works. Instead of logs, fibreglassed plywood pontoons, fabricated at Tofino's Wingen's shipyard, are to be used to provide buoyancy for the floats. The floats in turn are moored by chains to heavy concrete blocks embedded on the sea floor. This does away with piling.

There is no unemployment problem at either Ucluelet or Tofino and I found several men from the Greater Victoria area working on the above project. One was Ralph Pontious, pile-driver foreman for the Sooke Harbor Fishing and Packing Co.

Overhauling

Another was Ken Georgeson of 3391 Hatley Drive, a fibreglass boat builder. There is little or no fishing during the winter months, but most of the fishermen are engaged overhauling their boats and engines, or improving their homes.

Tofino's new 22-bedroom Maquinna Hotel, Betty Farmer's Clayoquot Hotel, Ucluelet Lodge and the four bungalow resorts on Long Beach provide excellent accommodation for visitors. Others are in the planning stage. Resident Dr. H. R. McDiarmid and Tofino's 25-bed hospital take care of the sick.

Now that the area can be reached by road the population is bound to increase. Home and business sites are in great demand and one enterprising Nanaimo real estate agent has already moved in. Tourists will come by the thousands to see Long Beach, and in general the overall picture presents a promising new era for this once isolated part of Vancouver Island.

Notwithstanding the recent rains, I found the road in reasonably good shape. Six months ago there was no road.

No Decision On Bridge

DUNCAN—Highways Engineer J. W. Morris said yesterday no decision had been made as to whether Clem-Clem-Alut Bridge, damaged in Jan. 29 Cowichan River flood, will be repaired or replaced.

One 'Near-Miss' a Day

Sidewalk to End Danger on Span

DUNCAN—At least one person a day narrowly escapes injury while walking over the Koksilah Bridge on the Trans-Canada Highway south of Duncan.

The danger will be eliminated in about a week.

District Engineer J. W. Morris of the highways department said a sidewalk being built on the downstream side of the bridge will eliminate the trouble.

"There have been a terrific amount of complaints of near accidents at the bridge," he said.

The bridge is one of the main routes used by Indians here between some parts of the Cowichan reserve and town.

Farm Market 'Business As Usual'

DUNCAN—Farmers may have no market here, but it will be "business as usual" for them this morning.

The city tore down their market building to make way for a civic parking lot, but the farmers are almost back in business at full strength and at the same location.

"The public's response has been a lot better than we thought," said one of the stallholders, Jack Young of Koksilah. "They seemed glad that we could keep going."

Five of the six stallholders were to open for business this morning in the old agricultural society section in the armory. It is beside the old market site.

Mr. Young said the Cowichan Indian band council, owners of the armory building, have said the farmers can use the building almost as long as they want. Stallholders are "regrouping" to get new quarters.

Warships, Aircraft Attack Mystery Sub

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—An unconfirmed press report said a mystery submarine, hunted by the Argentine navy for 12 days, surfaced in Argentine waters Thursday and was attacked by warships and naval aircraft.

Fraser Diversion End of Columbia?

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has jeopardized U.S.-Canada agreement on power sharing on the Columbia River through its continued threat to divert its waters into the Fraser River, Senator Thomas Reid said Thursday. External Affairs Minister Green has said repeatedly that in any joint agreement, "we will reserve the power to divert the water from the Columbia," the senator said.

"That might well be used as one of the arguments for American interests not to reach a final agreement."

Senator Reid, chairman of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said any diversion of Columbia water to the Fraser would mean "goodbye salmon" and the end of a $50,000,000 yearly business for his province.

This was the latest story in a bizarre naval operation that has prompted wild speculation as well as serious political questions on what the submarine—if it is a submarine—is doing in Argentine waters.

STILL PURSUING
"All that the navy would say is that it is still pursuing the submarine believed trapped in Golfo Nuevo, a 20 by 40 square mile body of water separated from the Atlantic by a narrow entrance."

The Argentine news agency Telam said its correspondent at Puerto Madryn was told of the surface battle by "unofficial sources. He added that the situation was 'extremely confused.'"

MOST JEALOUS
Argentina is among the world's most jealous nations in matters of sovereignty.

If the navy should capture a submarine, whatever country it belongs to will be in for a difficult time not only with Argentina but most of Latin America. "Diplomatic relations have been broken for far smaller affronts."

If there is a submarine and it turns out to be Russian, the current Soviet trade and friendship offensive probably would be set back for years as far as Latin America is concerned.

A government source said the submarine could be from Russia, Poland, East Germany, or Communist China.

Speaks Today

Bennett Back With Budget

Premier Bennett has had the good word from his doctors and expects to be on hand at 3 p.m. today to deliver his budget address to the legislature.

All reserved seats in the legislative galleries have been taken and it is expected there will be a line-up for the 125 seats in the public galleries.

The speech, which is expected to provide benefits for nearly everybody in British Columbia, will take about 1½ hours to read.

The premier, who has been convalescing after major surgery for a kidney ailment, expects to read the entire speech himself.

Disarmament Parley

Must Have China Pearson Contends

OTTAWA (UPI)—The absence of Communist China from the forthcoming 10-nation disarmament committee may prevent it from working out an effective disarmament agreement, Opposition leader Lester Pearson warned last night.

Pearson, who emphasized that he did not believe Red China should be given a United Nations seat or recognized diplomatically, said it would be difficult to reach an agreement "which will mean something," unless the Red regime was in the negotiations from the beginning.

"To be effective, disarmament must include the Red Chinese army—in some form or another," Pearson told the Commons during the external affairs debate.

Kidnap Suspects Hunted

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—Sheriff Art Wermuth said here last night he was searching for three suspects in the probable kidnapping of millionaire brewer Adolph Coors III.

One, he said, was believed to be in the Denver metropolitan area and the other two "are southeast of here."

He reaffirmed that no effort has been made to contact the Coors family for ransom.

Rocks Fly Far

Force of the blast left the front of the house at 836 Dunsmuir pockmarked with rock, chipped the fireplace, damaged the floor and the television set and left the room filled with rocks the size of coconuts. But Harvey McGee was counting his blessings, nonetheless.

IN FRONT WINDOW

"My boy Robbie was sitting directly in front of the window watching television not five minutes before it happened," he said last night. "If he had been there at the time, no telling what might have happened."

The blast occurred on the opposite side of Dunsmuir Road, where workmen have been clearing rock to widen the street. But a fault in the rock turned a routine explosion into one that sent a hail of rock speeding across the street.

NO NEGLIGENCE

Mr. McGee, who is satisfied that there was no negligence on anyone's part that led to the accident, was surveying the damage last night.

Rocks had been driven through the window with such force that they went the length of the living room into the room beyond. Carpets have to be sent out to be cleared of shattered glass, and there were several dents in the hardwood floor.

SHORT CIRCUIT

The television set that Robbie had been watching had a piece knocked out of its cabinet. Somehow the explosion caused a short-circuit, which turned on the record-player of the combination set.

Robbie, too young to realize how narrowly he had escaped what might have been a serious accident, was concerned with only one thing last night.

"They have to take the TV set away," he explained gravely, and left no doubt that this was a serious problem indeed.

Trujillo Jails 41 Plotters

CAJALCUTZ, Dominican Republic (AP)—Forty-one men were sentenced Thursday to 30 years at hard labor for plotting to overthrow the Trujillo regime.

That brought to 120 the number of persons given the maximum sentence since the government announced it had smashed a nation-wide plot last month.

Atlas Works 19th Time

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—The U.S. successfully fired its Atlas intercontinental range missile for the 19th straight time Thursday night.

The missile performed perfectly over a 6,300-mile course. This is as far as the Atlas has travelled, having flown the same distance three times previously.

Paar Walks Out in Mid-Show, Let Down by NBC, He Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Comedian Jack Paar, feuding with NBC because he was cut off the air Wednesday night during an anecdote, quit the show in a huff Thursday night. It was an emotional farewell.

There were groans from the audience and shouts of "Oh, no," as the television star announced his exit from the show.

"I believe I was let down by this network at a time when I could have used their help," Paar said.

AUDIENCE APPLAUDS
He shook hands with Hugh Downs, the show's regular announcer, then rushed off stage.

The audience broke into applause.

NBC immediately issued a statement expressing the hope he would cool off and ultimately reconsider his abrupt decision.

There was doubt at that time whether the taped show would be broadcast. But NBC decided to broadcast it exactly as taped, including Paar's almost tearful farewell.

The scrap between the comedian and the network centred around an anecdote dealing with the letters "W.C." widely used in Europe as an abbreviation for water closet, and the ensuing confusion when someone understood them to mean wayside chapel.

A network official said NBC's department of standards and practices felt the story was in bad taste.

Paar called it "very innocent."

Stranded for the moment in the confusion were three well-known guest stars—Genevieve, the French singer and actress; Orson Bean, actor and comedian, and comedian Shelly Berman.

CENSOR AN 'IDIOT'

Announcer Hugh Downs took over later as master of ceremonies of the coast-to-coast show and the taping was continued.

Some broadcasting officials expressed the belief that Paar would cool off during the weekend and return to the show next week.

Paar had been in an angry mood all day over the censoring of the anecdote Wednesday night and denounced as "an idiot" the unnamed NBC official who ordered him cut off the air.
